FOREWORD

—And an Appreciation

By the Editor

NINETEEN thirty-eight in the motion picture industry, both American and world-wide, was essentially a year of change.

The record of those changes, major as well as minor, and their effect upon the industry, will be found chronicled on the pages of this, the 21st Edition of the Year Book of Motion Pictures.

LIKE its predecessors, the new volume presents, in addition to those invaluable reference features which long have made the Year Book an international authority and primary source book, departures in content designed to keep it fully abreast of the times.

For the first time, the 1939 Year Book presents a complete, authoritative statistical picture of the industry in all its phases, the format devised to facilitate ready reference use.

WITH commercial television's advent assured in the Spring, the new volume offers an enlarged, comprehensive television section of essential interest to all engaged in the motion picture industry.

The highly important developments in the foreign field during 1938 likewise receive special treatment, and the text of the British Films Act, the controversial effects of which are noted, is given in full.

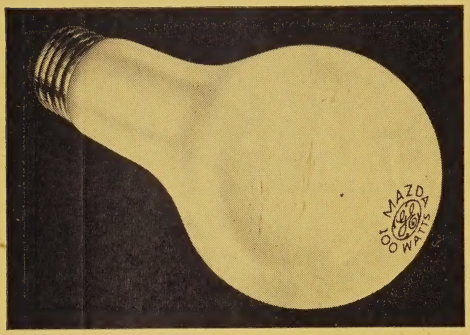
An improved non-theatrical section, a summary of the Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment campaign, an illuminating treatise on the right of privacy—these are other outstanding features.

IT hardly need be added that the 21st edition again represents the efforts of countless collaborators, official and unofficial, among them the MPPDA, the Academy, the studios, the distributing companies, exchanges, Federal departments and bureaus, the daily press and foreign collaborators. To these loyal friends of The Film Daily and the industry, once again, The Editor's deep and grateful appreciation.

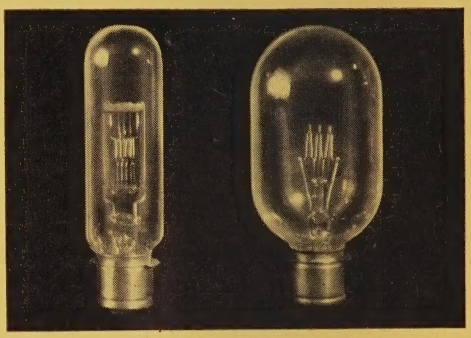
Jack Alicoate.

General Electric makes lamps for every Theatre Lighting Service

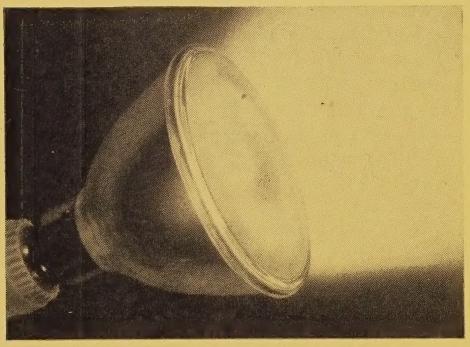
GENERAL ELECTRIC makes a lamp for every theatre lighting service. A few of them are shown here. MAZDA lamps made by G-E represent the result of more than 40 years of research and development. Each of them must pass 480 checks and inspections in manufacture to guard against imperfections that might affect their performance in service. Always look for the monogram GE. For detailed information, see the nearest General Electric Lamp Sales Office.



GENERAL LIGHTING SERVICE lamps fulfill most of the lamp requirements for ordinary theatre use. Made in sizes from 15 up to 1500 watts, and available in certain sizes in clear, inside frosted, colors and daylight bulbs.



MAZDA LAMPS for motion picture projection and spotlight use have extreme concentration of light source. Because of technical improvements including heat-resistant bulbs, small bulb size is possible. Sizes up to 2000 watts.



G-E MAZDA Projector lamp combines a mirror reflector, a light-directing lens, and a 150-watt lamp filament in one sealed-in unit. Available in both Spotlight and Floodlight types. Both types list at $1.70.

G-E FLUORESCENT MAZDA lamps give several times more light than ordinary incandescent lamps. For the same amount of light, they are 50% cooler. Available in gold, pink, blue, green, red, white, and daylight.

The Trend Today is RCA because

ONLY RCA PHOTOPHONE DOES THE WHOLE JOB

Research, Recording, Reproducing, Sales and Service

RESEARCH

RCA's research and engineering in all fields of sound enables it to pioneer the movie industry's greatest advances in both recording and reproduction.

RECORDING

Major film companies and Industrial Producers have been quick to recognize the advantages offered by RCA Photophone. Such film leaders as Columbia, Walt Disney, Pathe, Republic, RKO, 20th Century-Fox, and Warner Brothers use RCA Photophone Ultra-Violet Recording equipment. Recording Facilities are available at 411 Fifth Ave., New York City, N.Y., and 1016 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California.

REPRODUCING

Over 5,000 theatres use RCA Photophone Magic Voice of the Screen with the famous Rotary Stabilizer Soundhead.

We will gladly furnish facts and information about RCA Photophone's latest and greatly improved theatre sound equipment.

THEATRE SOUND SERVICE

For more than ten years the RCA Photophone service organization has rendered outstanding service to thousands of theatres—that's why more theatres than ever before contracted for Photophone service during 1938.

Box-Office Success!

LEADING motion picture producers recognize these two facts . . .

1. Good photography is essential to box-office success.
2. A film you can depend on is essential to good photography.

Agfa films possess the extra margin of quality that makes them the outstanding achievements of film manufacture.

Look for the famous Agfa "Diamond" trademark on each and every film you use . . . it signalizes a real contribution toward finer pictures. Made by Agfa Ansco Corporation in Binghamton, N. Y.

FILM RENTAL, SUPPLIES, AND ALL OTHER OPERATING EXPENSES

The entertainment which brings patrons to your theater night after night is, in the last analysis, just a rapidly changing pattern of light and shadow. The film which provides the shadow pattern is rented, but YOU provide the light. The quality and quantity of that light determines the effectiveness with which the picture is presented. The finest story and the most beautiful photography will often fail to please if poorly projected.

Simplified High Intensity projection provides the best projection light available to the average theater today. Yet the required investment is only 2⅓ per cent of the total investment in the average theater and the operating cost only 2⅕ per cent of total operating expense.

It provides the screen brightness and sharp definition desired by that large percentage of your patrons not blessed with perfect vision. It gives the most realistic reproduction of the increasingly popular color features. It permits a comfortable and safe level of general illumination. Ask your dealer to show you the economy of Simplified High Intensity projection.

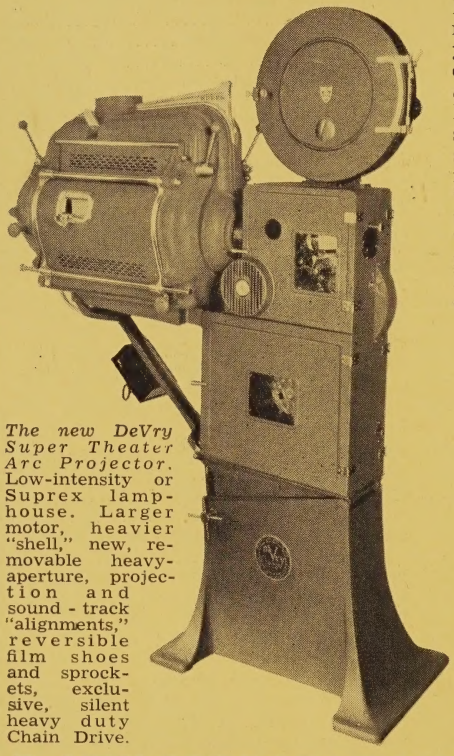
DO THEY PASS YOUR THEATER

because of "FUZZY" sound and Pictures?

SHE: Let's not go there! The sound isn't good.

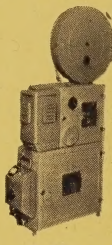
HE: Right! And the pictures aren't clear.



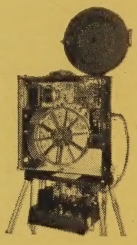
The new DeVry Super Theater Arc Projector. Low-intensity or Suprex lamphouse. Larger motor, heavier "shell," new, removable heavy-aperture, projection and sound-track "alignments," reversible film shoes and sprockets, exclusive, silent heavy duty Chain Drive.

Do people make these or similar remarks about your theater? If they do you are losing money—every day—every night—every week. And DeVry can help you stop that loss. For DeVry brings you projection that assures clear, brilliant pictures and sound that is crisp, full, and rich in overtones—always.

There's a DeVry Projector for every theater — expertly engineered and "tailor made" to most precise specifications. Write us about your problems. We will gladly advise you without obligation.



The DeVry Semi-portable Projector. Lighter construction. Mazda illumination. Equipped with a sound unit that readily meets all the requirements of small and medium-sized theaters and Traveling Shows.



DeVry "ESF" Portable Sound Projector. Most popular of all portable 35mm. sound projectors. Handles 2000 ft. reels, and built for heavy duty. Complete unit easily carried in two cases. Adequate for smaller theaters and halls.

"FIRST CLASS TICKET PLEASE!"

It's no secret that Fitzpatrick Traveltalks account for more tickets at the boxoffice than any other travel series . . . exhibitors tell us there is no more satisfying subject for every type of audience than these enchanting close-ups of people and places here, there and everywhere . . . there's a world of entertainment in every reel.

Take a tip, give your patrons a trip with the acknowledged leader in travel FIRST CLASS—

M-G-M's FITZPATRICK TRAVELTALKS

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS!

Starting soon, Fitzpatrick's All-American series will picture important sections of North, South and Central America—Brazil, Chile, Peru, Argentina, Uruguay, Venezuela, Panama, Alaska and Canada, and beauty spots of the United States.

HEAR! HEAR!

"These M-G-M Traveltalks are the tops. Hats off to Fitzpatrick. Best in the business."—A. J. INKS, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

"Would rather see one of these Traveltalks than a feature."—GLADYS E. McARDLE, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan.

"These are the best travel reels on the market."—RICHARD C. WELCH, Comique Theatre, Camden, Maine

"Our patrons like these colored Traveltalks and we run them all."—MAYME P. MUSSELMAN, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan.

ALTEC SERVICE CORPORATION

250 West 57th Street • New York City

COlumbus 5-3255

A nationwide independent service organization, specializing in the servicing of sound equipment in motion picture theatres. Altec Service Corporation, having no restrictive affiliations that would make service subservient to the selling of new equipment, provides exhibitors with a completely unbiased service, devoted to keeping the equipment now in use in the theatre at its highest possible efficiency, no matter what the age, the model, or the make of the equipment.

Altec Service Corporation also services radio station transcription equipment, as well as all electronic equipment, such as photo-electric cell devices, sound transmission apparatus, and industrial vacuum tube applications generally.

Altec Service Corporation maintains warehouses and emergency stock points strategically located throughout the country, containing the largest inventory of emergency parts of any organization in the field. Stock points operate on a twenty-four hour-a-day basis.

COOPERATION

LET'S make cooperation our watchword in 1939.

The past year witnessed the production of a great number of superior photoplays. It also saw many stimulating and beneficial results brought about through the efforts for cooperation among the various branches of the industry.

These results should be a guide for the future. In an atmosphere of mutual trust, mutual responsibility and mutual help, the industry can best progress. Mutual endeavors serve not only this art-industry, and that means everybody in motion pictures, but likewise best serve the interests of the millions of movie-goers.

The public's interest is our primary responsibility. Our task is to provide entertainment, and that requires team work. Let us continue this cooperation throughout the coming year.

NON-THEATRICAL FILMS

THE outlook for the so-called ad film as far as placing it on the screens of the motion picture theaters is far from promising. We refer to the sponsored film of short-reel length, and not to the minute movie which flashes its frank advertising message inside of 90 seconds.

Practically no progress was made the past year in getting the ad film over in the theaters, two attempts of large industrial concerns having proved costly flops. On the other hand, the modest minute movie has steadily progressed, and today is being shown on the screens of approximately 8,000 theaters regularly. While the field for this small ad film has been in the smaller type of houses, there is now a substantial number of important independent circuits contracted to show the minute movies.

And now the action of the board of directors of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association in taking definite steps to control the sponsored film seems to have permanently excluded it from attaining any appreciable playing time in the better type of theaters.

Under the ruling, the Advertising Advisory Council of the association must give its approval of any ad film that does not come within the minute movie classification of less than 200 feet, before it can play in the theaters of the affiliated circuits. They must be plainly identified as commercial films with a title frame reading: "This Is An Advertisement."

Thus with one clever move it would seem that the Hays organization has spiked the rumored intentions of the advertising agencies to move in on the motion picture theaters as they have done with radio. The average audience in the better theaters will react unfavorably to having advertisements thus baldly foisted upon them when they have paid a good admission price to see purely entertainment films. Without access to the screens of the better class theaters, the national manufacturer will hesitate to spend important money on a circulation in the smaller houses where the minute movie would answer his purpose just as well and for far less expenditure.

Lack of cooperation on the part of producers of industrial films to create an organized distribution away from the theater is the chief stumbling block in expanding the commercial field. After the sponsor has spent his money on a suitable film that adequately presents his product, and even if the industrial producer has done a good job, the film becomes of little value if intended for consumer consumption for the simple reason that no adequate distribution to reach the public exists. It is a hit and miss process. And so, many manufacturers who have dabbled with the idea of motion picture presentation, are confining their film activities to the production of reels for the education and inspiration of their own organization staffs in home office, sales departments, factories, branches, and their dealers.

With the big theaters practically closed to the ad film, the production of these for the sole purpose of appealing to the consumer must be confined to the modest minute movie, unless a system of distribution is built up away from the regular movie audiences. Suggestions have been advanced during the past year to take over special theaters in key cities for exclusive showings of industrial films with educational films, combined to build an entertaining program. Intelligently handled, this seems to be the eventual solution. The public is being educated up to an interest in and appreciation of the activities of big industries as evidenced by the reaction to the present administration in Washington focusing the spotlight on big business.

Personnel of leading firms in this field, and the activities of many of the companies, is included in the Non-Theatrical section, starting on page 669.

TELEVISION

By GEORGE H. MORRIS

Film Daily Staff

HELD for the most part under blankets in preparation for its nominal debut coincident with the opening of the New York World's Fair at the end of April, commercial television, nevertheless, was significantly groomed, trained and put through paces indicative of speedy development when unleashed for American audiences.

Because of the important part which motion pictures are to inevitably play in television's future, all branches of the film industry during 1938 watched with high interest the progress of the new science, convinced that its potentialities as a commercial medium are enormous.

That a drive, embracing the several existing wings of television,—namely the manufacturing of receiving sets, marketing thereof, and the provision for regular telecasts,—was ready for launching, was disclosed exclusively by THE FILM DAILY last October. Shortly after, David Sarnoff, RCA's president, declared that his company and others would market sets by April. Incidentally, it was estimated that RCA had spent some $20,000,000 on television research and development.

Thus, as the year ended, eyes were trained on 1939 as the time when the occasional sets which had for some time graced counters and shelves of department and sporting stores would become household commodities on an expansive scale, and when FCC's conservative policy on standardization and its insistance upon experimental licenses for television stations would probably be modified, resulting in major radio interests bringing television into the open.

Among the year's highlights, directly or indirectly bearing upon the film industry's place in the television sun were:

(a) the buying into DuMont Laboratories, Inc., television firm, by Paramount; (b) the "watchful waiting" policy of Warners to capitalize on its control of Transamerican Broadcasting and Television Corp.; (c) the similar policy of RKO to look to RCA as its natural affinity, and to NBC as a relative; (d) checkup which revealed that no less than 20 television stations held experimental licenses and that RCA alone had licensed approximately 50 receiving set makers; (e) announcement that both NBC and CBS will purvey regular telecasts in the metropolitan area on or about May 1, 1939; (f) granting to GE of FCC licenses for four new experimental television stations, two of the stations to be at Schenectady, and visual only, while the others, at Albany and Bridgeport, to include sight and sound; (g) the calling by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for a television investigation covering "artistic, technical, legal and economic phases," which, it was contended, merited continual observation and analysis by the motion picture industry; and (h) the clearing of the television patent situation.

British television interests are not indifferent to the American market possibilities, witness the visit to this country late in the year of two Scophony executives, Solomon Sagall, managing director, and Arthur Levey, a director of the English company. A $10,000,000 Scophony American company is envisioned; necessarily, under FCC regulations, it must be financially controlled by U. S. capital if it takes shape.

As against the enthusiasm regarding television's formal debut in 1939, statements by several prominent television leaders warned that the science is considerably more distant as a public instrument than just around the corner. These statements pointed to the barriers of costs and technical difficulties.

A series of articles, covering the field of television from the standpoints of Production Technique, Progress and History, plus the recent Academy report and a list of television stations, is started on page 787.

TREND of business generally augurs a good year for the film industry during 1939, with business indices recording gains at the start of the new year. The close of 1938 found picture stocks and bonds with few exceptions generally higher than at the close of the preceding year. Structural changes in several corporate setups took place during the year, but no momentous financial realignments occurred. Despite foreign difficulties and domestic problems, earnings were generally higher than forecast at the beginning of 1938.

FOREIGN MARKETS

By GEORGE H. MORRIS

Film Daily Staff

POLITICAL and economic factors conspired during the year to confuse and curtail U. S. film operations in various sectors of the world market.

On April 1, after protracted wrestling with suggested provisions, Britain's Parliament enforced the resulting Cinematograph Films Act, 1938, which was expected to accelerate production there, and, additionally, to aid employment and solve in a definite and general way the static conditions which had long prevailed. Due to the uncertainty as to what form the legislation would take, British companies,—as well as U. S. interests who bitterly opposed the measure from its inception,—marked time during January, February and March. Consequent inertia prevented normal progress. At the close of the year, a survey of unbiased sources disclosed that the Films Act, while having stimulated U. S. production of more elaborate features in England, fell far short of what was hoped would be achieved, and labor pressed for revisions.

On Nov. 17 a reciprocal trade agreement, in effect as of Jan. 1, 1939, between the U. S. and Great Britain, Canada, Newfoundland and the British Colonial empire, was signed in Washington. While pact granted trade concessions to some film commodities, it failed to affect workings of the Films Act.

New South Wales' Parliament, toward the year's end, enacted regulatory film legislation amending prior Acts. Step was taken in wake of existing timidity of officialdom to enforce previous legislation which legalists had strongly suggested was unconstitutional. New law, effective as of Jan. 1, 1939, perplexed interpreters, some of whom expressed opinion that it did not impose quota on the distributor. A 25 per cent rejection clause was included.

Italy was a frequent vortex of U. S. companies' concern, since Fascist officialdom issued a decree which set up ENIC, a monopolistic film bureau. On Dec. 31, the eve of the decree's enforcement, four major distribs., Warners, Paramount, M-G-M and 20th-Fox pulled out of Italy in what amounted to an eviction of these firms. Four other distribs., RKO, UA, Columbia and Universal, all of which had agreements with several years to run, were reported offered commercial continuance in Italy, and declared subject to the decree. At expiration of the year, responsible channels declared that all eight of the U. S. majors were presenting a solid front of objections to ENIC.

Japan also stood out as an industry problem. For the first seven months U. S. distributors were in almost continuous negotiations with Nippon's officials to iron out difficulties attending importation and de-freezing revenue gained from American pictures in the empire. Finally, on Aug. 10, the Exchange Bureau of the Finance Ministry stated expectancy that importation up to a maximum of $30,000 to Jan. 1, 1939, at a value of 1½c per ft., would be approved. Materialization found way open for some 250 U. S. pictures to invade the Japanese market. Under arrangement, profits of U. S. firms up to 3,000,000 yen could be remitted up to the end of 1938 upon condition that each remittance be converted into American currency at the time of remittance and deposited with the San Francisco branch of the Yokohama Specie Bank without interest, not to be paid to the payee before three years from the date of remittance. As agreement expired on Dec. 31, it was indicated that an unofficial status quo would be maintained.

Annexation by Germany of Austria and the Sudeten areas of Czechoslovakia curtailed and beclouded latter fields. So did the later establishment of the Czech and Slovak protectorates, and to a lesser extent, the Nazi annexation of Memel. Attending rise of totalitarian influences in other sections of southeastern Europe reduced U. S. distribution potentialities. The German market, as far as U. S. product was concerned, ceased comparatively to exist.

Notwithstanding the widespread international instability and the deprivation of opportunity enjoyed in former years by Hollywood product throughout Europe and the Far East, losses were estimated at less than 10%.

A complete Foreign Section listing exporters and importers resident in New York, a survey of Dept. of Commerce assistance in the international market, a survey of foreign markets, personnel of British companies and the text of the British Films Act is started on page 1112.

EXPLOITATION

BY JACK HARROWER

Film Daily Staff

THE industry is fortunate in the possession of a small but select army of theater managers scattered in large cities and small towns who, no matter how hard pressed they are for appropriations, have the showman instinct so strong within them that they can always be depended on to come through with a smash campaign for their ace attractions. They have also done outstanding work in tying into and embellishing locally the big national campaigns of the producer-distributors.

It is these ace men in the field, ably supported by the exploitation men of certain major producers, who originate and develop new ideas and methods in motion picture sales direct to the public. Their number must grow, and the industry must recognize their strategic importance, if the vital department of exploitation is to achieve its maximum value in selling the public.

Channels of publicizing and exploiting a motion picture today are so widespread that even some B-type productions are receiving merchandising superior to that which super productions received not so many years ago. Newspaper columns syndicated in hundreds of papers; photoplay news features going over the wire services; radio picture gossipers; sponsored radio programs; motion picture fashion tie-ups with department stores; tie-ups of stars with national magazine advertising and in window displays—all these priceless media are working day by day to build up interest in the product of the studios.

Newspapers are giving more publicity to pictures than ever before. Reviews are getting more attention and better display. Even the lesser pictures are given attention, whereas in other years many newspapers ignored them entirely. Hollywood columns are the rule rather than the exception, alongside the contribution of the local critic adding his daily news and picture space. Picture stars and their activities are appearing more and more in the front page news, and though a lot of industry attention is focused on bad publicity, the bulk of the picture news hitting the front page is beneficial both to the pictures and the players.

The evil of give-aways is still with us. The solution, of course, is a constantly high quality of pictures so that the public would come to the box-office without any other lure. The trouble is that many theater men who squawk at the evil are the ones who rush back to the give-aways at the first sign of lessened business. The cost of premiums could be more constructively employed in merchandising the pictures.

Since the closeness of bookings makes it difficult for any theater manager to build up a long advance campaign on any picture, he is learning to depend more and more on the producer-distributor to do this essential work. The danger is in the fact that many theater men are depending more and more on the producer-distributor to take care of their local campaign as well.

The success of the blanketing campaigns of the producer-distributors on their better product is so marked that it seems logical and probable that such campaigns will become more extensive as time goes on. The advance 24-sheeting of cities on big pictures has been productive of fine results. Full-page magazine ads keyed to national release dates, backed by syndicated column plugs, radio chatterers preview remarks, Hollywood newscasters tip-offs—all break simultaneously ahead of the picture openings in the key cities. Topped by local co-op national newspaper ads, all these factors have really combined to make the showman's job of exploitation a sinecure.

An exploitation manual with a selection of basic promotion stunts, arranged under convenient headings, is started on page 847.

COLOR

By AL STEEN

Film Daily Staff

COLOR in motion pictures advanced scientifically as well as in popularity during 1938, with prospects of making even greater strides during the current year. As an indication of what the fans think of natural color in pictures, one has only to see the results of a poll taken on the subject by Radio Station WHN in New York. Sixty-eight per cent of the voting listeners declared themselves in favor of color over black and white.

While Technicolor remains an unchallenged leader in the field to date, experiments by new groups have resulted in surprising progress in simplifying the process. Newcomers included Cosmocolor, Brewster, Telco, Carroll Dunning and Spoor. In Germany, highly satisfactory results were obtained with Agfa Pantachrome. Another was a color film process developed in Montreaux, Switzerland, while still another development was reported in Japan.

Dufaycolor, now a 100 per cent American company, limits its activities to still pictures but invasion of the feature film field is under serious consideration. Cinecolor has been found to be highly satisfactory by its users.

Increase in the use of color can be attributed largely to the reduction in costs, in addition to the general improvement in quality. For example, when "Toll of the Sea," an early Technicolor picture was released by M-G-M, in 1922. Technicolor billed the color prints at 20 cents per foot, although the company's production cost was 27 cents. A year later, "Wanderer of the Wasteland" was released by Famous Players-Lasky at a color tariff of 15 cents a foot. Today the base cost has dropped to 5½ cents a foot.

In the case of Technicolor, special equipment is required, but Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president, in an address before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers predicted that "within two years Technicolor will have done away with special cameras and be regularly employing single strips of negative through any standard motion picture camera."

Dr. Kalmus then made another prediction, fulfillment of which, probably will be welcomed with open arms by motion picture producers. "Within two months," he said, "for special purposes and within six months for more general purposes, Technicolor will be offering to its customers a negative for use in its present comeras with from three to four times the speed of its present negative."

Producers still are moving cautiously in making pictures in color, and yet there is not the opposition nor the fear of expense that held back color product a few years ago. Technicolor footage in 1938 totalled 65,000,000 feet. For 1939, bookings already are more than 100,000,000 feet, with the Coast plant expected to be operating close to 130,000,000 feet before the end of the year.

To meet this growing volume of business, Technicolor has appropriate approximately $1,500,000 to increase the number of cameras and to double its plant capacity. The completion of this expansion program should be realized this year.

A minimum of 33 features for the 1939-40 season will be made in Technicolor, plus an unestimated number of shorts.

LABOR in 1938

BY HOLLIS KENNAHAN

Film Daily Staff

MANY significant developments took place in the labor field during 1938, although no serious strikes or major disturbances occurred. Jurisdictional disputes within labor's ranks failed to result in any great change in the balance of power, the IATSE in particular, retaining its position despite several abortive attempts by the CIO to move in.

The annual meeting of the producers and IA chieftains to discuss the basic pact resulted in a stalemate. The producers asked for a 10 per cent wage cut, only to be met by a counter demand for a 10 per cent increase; net result was renewal of the pact on the same terms. Granting of autonomy to the big Coast Locals by the IA came as surprise, but all indications pointed to a continuance of the basic agreement.

In the creative field, the Screen Actors Guild assumed the dominating position in the AAAA setup. New, modified agreements were negotiated by the SAG with all major companies, and the independents were also lined up. The name of Junior Screen Actors Guild, comprising the extras and bit players, was abolished and the SAG membership divided into Class A and B groups. Additionally, the SAG moved to reduce its membership. Threat by the IA to attempt a jurisdictional grab of the creative field met with unified resistance, and the possibility of such a move has almost vanished.

A bitter battle for supremacy was waged between the Screen Writers Guild and the Screen Playwrights, with the Guild winning an overwhelming victory at the election ordered by the NLRB. The SWG also won complete autonomy from the Authors' League during the year. Screen Directors Guild petitioned for certification as exclusive bargaining agent for directors, unit managers and assistant directors, charging the major companies with unfair labor practices for refusing to negotiate.

Passing of the Wages and Hours Law presented a further problem for the film industry, and its full effect is yet to be determined. Due to the passage of the statute, studios have placed all white collar workers on a 40-hour week. At Paramount assistant cameramen went on a 44-hour week.

Among other important developments during 1938 was agreement on an eight-hour day for actors and the resignation of William Bioff as Coast head of IATSE and the appointment of Harold V. Smith as his successor.

The producers recognized Society of M. P. Film Editors and fixed a minimum of $100 weekly for editors of features and $75 for shorts. Producers refused to negotiate with studio publicity writers, art directors and smaller groups, contending their status should be established by NLRB.

Organization work was pushed during the year, both on the Coast and in the East. The Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers union was active in the theater and publicity field. Eastern laboratories were being organized rapidly by Local 702, lab. technicians union, with several contracts signed and others now in the course of negotiation. Contract covering service employers in the theaters was negotiated by the Building Service Employees Union. New contracts were also negotiated by the Stagehands and Operators Unions.

The American Federation of Musicians started a drive to cut down the number of days in the work week of theater musicians, retaining the same pay scale. The American Federation of Actors also was active, driving now for closed shop pacts in all theaters with stage shows.

Relationship between industry labor and employer generally reached a firmer footing during the year. The cementing of friendly ties was signalized when Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, broke precedent and addressed the national convention of the IATSE.

THE 1938 INDUSTRY DRIVE

By AL STEEN

Film Daily Staff

IT was at an AMPA luncheon in mid-July when the spark was set off which resulted in the Motion Pictures Greatest Year campaign and its companion, the Movie Quiz. Will Hays, in addressing AMPA and its guests, recommended that "a great new campaign of intensive advertising" be launched to bring the industry out of the current recession.

The next day industry executives huddled in the office of General Hays, mapped out a campaign and set to work to put it into effect. On July 21, George Schaefer, who was named general chairman, sent invitations to 141 circuit executives, independent and affiliated, for a big mass meeting to be held at the Hotel Astor in New York. Exhibitors poured in from near and far, and on that hot summer day $825,000 was pledged to back a gigantic drive to bring patrons back to the theaters.

The rest is pretty much history. The major producers and one independent, Monogram, pledged $500,000 towards the million-dollar goal. The affiliated circuits promised $250,000, the balance to be raised by the independents. Paul Gulick, late of Universal, was brought in as coordinator and Harold B. Franklin, well known in circuit operations, was named business manager.

The Movie Quiz was launched nationally and through regional committees. Thirty-one million booklets were printed and distributed. The actual contest got under way Sept. 1 and closed Dec. 31.

Meanwhile, full pages and space of various sizes were inserted in newspapers throughout the country. The industry as a whole hummed with activity, the advertising departments of every participating company cooperating to the fullest, under the guidance of Howard Dietz, head of the advertising committee.

Response to the Movie Quiz was considered satisfactory. A total of 2,152,930 booklets, constituting that many entries, were received by the campaign committee and awards totalling $250,000 were distributed to winners in 48 states and many provinces in Canada.

Opinions as to the value of the campaign have been divided—ranging from severe criticism to the highest praise. Accomplishments, however, of the drive appear to be best summed up by George Schaefer, who, in a specially prepared statement for THE FILM DAILY YEAR BOOK, said:

"That the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year Campaign generated new enthusiasm for motion pictures, started the nation thinking about pictures and revived a lagging interest in them, no one can deny. If the campaign did nothing more than to give our industry a rebirth of showmanship, I would say that the moneys spent in the campaign were well spent. But we have evidence on every hand that more tangible results were obtained. Business increased materially throughout the country and in many territories where intensive work was done by theaters supplementing the national campaign, a marked improvement in business resulted.

"Most of all, I believe Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign brought far-reaching proof of the value of cooperation by all branches of the industry to its mutual interest. The whole-hearted support that the committee received from independent exhibitors, circuits, distributors and producers proved that when a big job is to be done, the industry has within itself the spirit and the man-power to accomplish the desired results."

PRODUCTION IN THE EAST

By SID WEISS

Film Daily Staff

IT WAS just a year ago that Eastern Service Studios, the stronghold of feature production in the East, became a subsidiary of Audio Productions, Inc., which is in turn wholly-owned by Electrical Research Products, Inc., and the Western Electric Co. Under the guardianship of Frank K. Speidell, President, and Charles L. Glett, Vice-President, much has been done to modernize and improve the facilities for production in Astoria.

Chief among the new features is the first and only permanent installation of Technicolor in the East. Other improvements include a new trailer-unit with the first portable sound studio in New York and complete equipment in the animation, optical and camera departments.

During feature production in Astoria, between six and eight hundred persons are employed, in addition to a permanent technical staff of more than 200. The current revival of Eastern production is expected to bring a minimum of 25 productions to Astoria within the coming year. Four separate units, two of which have already started production, are scheduled to operate in the East.

The season saw feature production here become a reality for the first time since the old Hecht-MacArthur days. William K. Howard produced and directed "Back Door to Heaven" with Wallace Ford, Stuart Erwin, Aline MacMahon and Patricia Ellis for Paramount release under the banner of Odessco Productions.

Triple-A Productions, organized by Harold Orlob and Dudley Murphy contributed "One Third of a Nation," starring Sylvia Sidney under the direction of Murphy.

The first of a scheduled series of six Spanish feature length musicals was produced at Astoria by William Rowland with Bob Snody directing.

The Vitaphone production schedule remained practically on a par with last season with 84 shorts being turned out at the Brooklyn plant under the guidance of Sam Sax. With the shut-down of the studio set for April 26, Warner short subject production will be shifted to the coast with only Ira Genet's "Color Parade" series remaining in the Eastern schedule. Sam Sax sails for England to become top exec. at Warner's Teddington studios.

Another shift in the local scene is Milton Schwarzwald's transfer to the coast to become a director of two-reel musicals for Universal.

Short subject production here will be bolstered by the arrival of Arthur Dreifuss from the coast who is scheduled to produce 19 one-reel "Musical Hall Vanities" for Columbia.

With the new Movietone studio on 54th Street, 20th-Fox is scheduled to produce 26 short subjects which include: six Sport Reels, six Magic Carpets, six Lew Lehr shorts, four Fashion Forecasts, and four Adventures of a Newsreel Cameraman. This in addition to the 26 Terrytoons, which are produced in New Rochelle.

Ben Blake, long associated with the short subject field, stepped into the feature-length class with two Jewish films and announced his intention to continue full-length production in English. Other feature productions were made by Collective Film Producers, Inc., whose "Green Fields," directed by Edgar Ulmer, won a ten best award in a Paris contest; Musart Film Productions, Inc., who turned out a Ukranian operetta and Henry Lynn, who is directing and producing Yiddish pictures.

Roy Rowland, who directed three Bob Benchley shorts for M.G.M. at the Astoria lot last year, is slated to make three more in the East this year. Among the newcomers to production here is Robert Aisner, French producer, who will make four features in New York.

AN APPRECIATION

WITH the announcement of its results, the 17th annual "Ten Best Pictures" poll under aupices of The Film Daily passed into industry history, taking its place with those which, since 1922, yearly have applied the national critical yardstick to American motion picture entertainment.

In again acknowledging its indebtedness to the participating professional cinema critics and reviewers who have given generously of their time and talents, The Film Daily pauses briefly to contrast the 1938 poll with the first of the series.

For it is in the contrast that the steadily increasing importance of the poll, both to this industry and to journalism, is to be best noted. The first symposium in 1922 enlisted the co-operation of 47 critics, 30 of whom were associated with leading American newspapers. The other 17 were reviewers writing for trade papers and fan publications.

The 1938 poll saw the number of participants again touch a new high, 536, and the range of reviewers embrace those engaged by newspapers, magazines, leading syndicates and trade periodicals. Newspapers represented numbered 485.

In 1922, the No. 1 picture, "Orphans of the Storm," received 31 votes; the No. 10 picture, "Oliver Twist," 13. In 1938 the critics' first choice polled 419 votes, their tenth, "The Hurricane," 172.

Sixteen years ago, there were no local polls. While the 1938 symposium was in progress, more than 40 newspapers in large and small cities conducted local polls simultaneously. The marked growth in their number, especially during the last three years, has been as gratifying as it has been significant.

From both the industry and newspaper standpoint, this serious consideration of the year's film entertainment by critics and readers alike has definite value. Obviously, the further development of the cinema as a serious art form requires the continuing application of a national critical yardstick. The "Ten Best" poll assures this and, additionally, has a noticeable beneficial effect on criticism.

For the part that the critics of the United States, through the years, have played in the advance of motion pictures, we of The Film Daily extend not only our appreciation but that of a great and grateful industry.

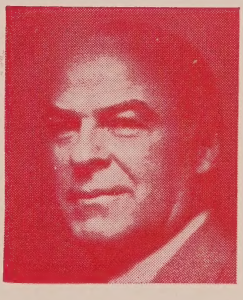
• WILL H. HAYS •

As head of Filmland's legions, The General put in a year of militant activity which found him engaged principally on the Eastern and Western fronts as usual. Celebrated his 16th Anniversary as industry administrator; crusaded for self-regulation as opposed to Government control; urged further studies of screen games' effects on exhibition; advised keying product to U. S. market conditions; cheered studios' moves to bring about b.o. upturns; studied distributors' proposals aimed at trade practice reform; aided actively and valuably Motion Pictures' Greatest Year; exhorted industry to step-up advertising; defended pix as true art, and acclaimed them as symbol of liberty; and received a Senate Committee invite to express his views on profit-sharing. In short, it was a characteristic Will Hays year!

• SIDNEY R. KENT •



Faced with the monumental task of heading the distributors' committee appointed to formulate a trade practice code to bridge the rift between exhibitors and the majors Sidney R. Kent plunged into the job with customary thoroughness. Kent did much to improve labor and employer relations via an address at the IATSE convention in Cleveland. With the passing of his friend, John D. Clark, general sales manager of 20th-Fox, Kent's administrative duties were increased until the appointment of Herman Wobber. He also had the satisfaction of seeing "Alexander's Ragtime Band" crack records of every description and pile up tremendous grosses.

• NICHOLAS M. SCHENCK •

When Nicholas M. announced that Loew's would back any move towards an arbitration or conciliation system, the path to the trade practice parleys began to be cleared. And, serving as an alternate chairman of the distribs' negotiating committee, he was a factor in the preparation of the trade reform draft. With other industry leaders, Nicholas M. called on the President in July and pledged the industry's co-operation in F.D.R.'s economic recovery program.

• HARRY M. WARNER •

In that quiet and direct way, which has always characterized his acts of service to his country and his industry, this head of the House of Warner was repeatedly the wellspring of inspiration and valuable advice throughout the past year. Crusaded for general industry prosperity, urging all studios to "prime the b.o. pump." Officers and representatives of the American Legion, at the time of their Los Angeles convention, invited him to address them. Obligingly, H. M. gave them a broadside of scintillating Americanism and declared the film industry free from Communistic taint and without sympathy for foreign "isms." To implant in others that flaming patriotism of his own, he personally saw to it that Warners stepped-up production both of patriotic shorts in color, as well as features having American themes.

• MAURICE SILVERSTONE •

A year ago Maurice Silverstone was concerned mainly about the welfare of United Artists' British organization. Today, responsibility for the company's worldwide operations rests on his shoulders. Following the resignation of Dr. A. H. Giannini as president in June, the owner-members of UA placed Maurice in the driver's seat and said, "You run the company." So Maurice bade goodbye to England, took off his coat and went to work on Uncle Sam's side of the Atlantic.

• NATE J. BLUMBERG •

Co-ordination of Universal's multiple branches into a smooth-running organization was Nate Blumberg's big task when 1938 opened its eyes. And Nate, who had just moved over from RKO's theaters to take the "U" helm, co-ordinated until he found the right combination, so that Universal today is in its healthiest position in many a moon. Frequent trips to the studios and burning the midnight oil in New York apparently have accomplished their purpose, and Universal is on the way "way up."

• LEO SPITZ •

That there is such a thing as double features in administration was again, and patently, proved in the instance of this talented prexy of RKO Corp., the parent company of the numerous RKO brood. Leo Spitz, being an accomplished attorney and a film exec. with a natural flare for the business, helmed RKO as usual in this fifth, and what was widely hoped would be the final year of its reorganization. He breathed a grateful sigh of relief in shedding a bundle of titles,—comprising the presidency and board chairmanships of RKO Radio, B. F. Keith, et al,—and was happy that George J. Schaefer took hold thereof. Spitz was decidedly prominent all year in filmland and its activities, serving as alternate chairman of the distributors' trade reform committee, heading up the industry's Palestine Drive; being feted testimonially; and feeling complimented when both RKO and Universal retained his Chicago law firm for further duty.

• GEORGE J. SCHAEFER •

If activity keeps a man young, the year 1938 should have restored George J. Schaefer to his 'teens. Piloting the sales destinies of United Artists, putting into operation and guiding the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign and then, suddenly, packing up his belongings and moving over to RKO as head of that company's several subsidiaries were highlights of his very active 12 months.

• BARNEY BALABAN •

An active year for Paramount meant an active year for its president. Kept busy by problems that face all top execs., Barney Balaban was instrumental in launching the company's British expansion program and the adoption of television as a stepchild. His announcement that Paramount would aid "reasonable" arbitration was one of the factors that brought about the trade reform parleys. He was re-elected to the presidency in June. In late December, he announced a world-wide company survey would be made by Adolph Zukor, additionally made public the appointment of David E. Rose as Para.'s top man in the U.K., Ireland.

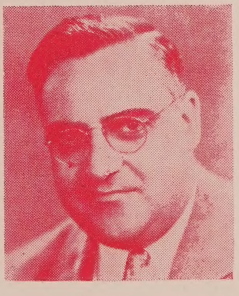
• HARRY COHN •

¶ While all manner of candidates for office were wondering in mid-October what the baffling ballots had in store for them, Harry Cohn was even more confident of his fortune than the South Boston congressman who always goes hunting in Africa at election time. You guessed it,—the up-and-doing candidate Cohn was again designated Columbia's big chief. It's monotonous, but mighty wise, for this energetic gent stuck to the job of supplying solid Columbia product to the world at large. In the same October, he called "time out" long enough to trek eastward to attend an MPPDA board meeting and one of his own.

• E. W. HAMMONS •

¶ It was an eventful year for the veteran Educational chieftain. The expiration of his distribution contract with 20th Century-Fox was the signal for an invasion of a broader field; namely, the merging of Educational and Grand National, the acquisition of the GN exchange system, the entry into extensive feature production and the establishment of a distributing and producing organization in England.

• W. RAY JOHNSTON •

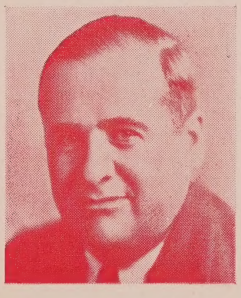


¶ The year was but a month or two old when he swung into action to launch Monogram on its most successful season. He moved Eddie Golden up to the vice-presidency, placed George W. Weeks in the sales manager's seat, strengthened distribution ties, hiked production costs and turned out good features. Combined results: Records smashed for sales and new accounts.

• JOSEPH M. SCHENCK •

¶ The name of the 20th-Fox board chairman figured largely throughout the year in the news. He traveled to Europe and laid the groundwork for the recently announced affiliation with Gaumont British-Gainsborough. Attending to company business in New York and on the Coast kept him on the jump. He conferred with President Roosevelt on industry matters, later in the year seeing the President once again to tender his acceptance of the national polio drive vice-chairmanship. Additionally, he was a staunch supporter of the distributors' trade program, formulated by a committee of which 20th-Fox's prexy, Sidney R. Kent, was chairman.

• JAMES R. GRAINGER •



¶ For Republic May was a merrie, merrie month, marking as it did the investiture of Jimmy as company's prexy and general manager in charge of distribution. Coming from Universal, which he served as general sales chieftain, this native New Yorker had demonstrated to him on moving over to that patriotic address of Republic (1776 Broadway) that he was more than "universally" loved, for he was feted right and left by pix industry admirers at testimonial feed-bag parties. Complacently folding up his napkin, he set out o'er the land and brought back to the home office so many folded-up signed contracts that Republic, by October, last, was a mere million dollars ahead of 1937 in sales. Wow!

• LOUIS B. MAYER •

¶ Here we meet the man whose production skill not only pleases the wearers of the M-G-M colors but whose services have won recognition from the industry as a whole. Take for example, the dinner in his honor in February sponsored by the AMPP. The international spotlight played upon him through the bestowal of the Order of the White Lion by pre-Munich Czechoslovakia. This year, Louis B. stayed close to home and gave M-G-M production his invaluable attention and supervision.

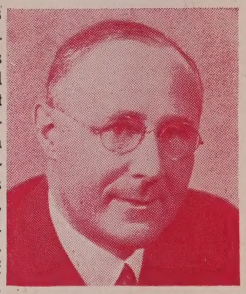
• ADOLPH ZUKOR •

¶ A history maker since the industry was in its cradle, Adolph Zukor, whose name has always been good "copy," started out late in 1938 to "sell" Paramount to the world. Re-elected chairman of the board in June, Zukor announced his retirement from active production duties in November and left these shores in December to act as the company's good-will ambassador abroad, with England his first stop.

• J. CHEEVER COWDIN •

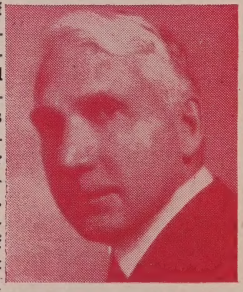
¶ It was "here again, gone again" with Universal's board chairman during the year. Taking the responsibility of bolstering U's financial position, J. Cheever hopped back and forth between New York and England and successfully completed deals for new money on both sides of the Atlantic, thereby paving the way for a profitable Universal year. And he also was active in smoothing out studio wrinkles which aided materially in stepping up production for bigger and better pictures.

• DR. HERBERT T. KALMUS •



¶ Technicolor's executive mainspring packed his luggage and crossed over to Europe just before Xmas, highly satisfied with company accomplishment on this side of the briny, for 1938 was indeed a Technicolor year, and the promise of 33 such features to be released in 1939-40 was more than heartening. Put up new addition to the existing Hollywood plant and tested production at full capacity. Told board in December that net for the year would probably hit the million mark. Spent considerable time in England forwarding plans and business of Technicolor, Ltd., and declared his hopes that Kodachrome Technicolor in 35 mm. would soon be a reality.

• WALTER W. VINCENT •



¶ The annum of '38 again witnessed the versatility of this board chairman of Republic, who also dips generously into exhibition and other phases of the industry's common weal. Watched the further material rise of Republic in pix ranks. Hied down to Washington early in year on behalf of MPTOA, ITO of Ohio, Allied States Assn., and his own Wilmer & Vincent Corp. to sell the House Ways and Means Committee on idea of change in admission tax law, by upping the exemption on the 10 p.c. angle from 40 cents to 50 cents. Spent 21 days in a Miami Beach bed fighting pneumonia and came through with not only flying colors, but renewed energy.

• MAJOR ALBERT WARNER •

The far-flung Warner domain made countless demands upon the Major during the past 12 months. Nothing unusual in that, perhaps, considering that he is a director, vice-president and treasurer of the parent company and additionally holds executive posts in many of its subsidiaries. Yet the Major was not too busy to heed the call of social service, and the year-end found him co-chairman with David Bernstein of the Amusement Division of the Jewish charities drive in the metropolis.

• DARRYL F. ZANUCK •

Advocate of more showmanship, the versatile and talented production head of 20th-Fox presented a diversified program to the exhibitors that had showmanship plus. He topped previous achievements with the history-making "Alexander's Ragtime Band," which is piling up tremendous world-wide profits. Zanuck was on the jump all year. Dinner guest of bankers in New York, he later returned East and left for Europe on a much deferred but well earned vacation. "Hollywood's unofficial envoy," London and Paris hailed him, and with reason.

• JACK COHN •

When the good ship Queen Mary tied up to her North River pier on Dec. 1, off stepped Columbia's v.p. with news of having concluded a pact with four leading French producers to supply one pix each for distribution by Columbia's new subsidiary, Famous Foreign Films, headed by Budd Rogers; and, additionally, that Columbia's British quota requirements would be taken care of via a deal with Irving Asher, and that a sextet of Columbia offices would be established in France.

• ROBERT T. KANE •

Although seldom seen in these parts, this able head of the 20th-Fox production forces in England nevertheless figures largely in the news. With his company planning an expansion of its English program and making a deal with Gaumont British-Gainsborough to produce jointly in England, he will be one of the U. K.'s busiest execs. during 1939. Following an earlier visit, Kane returned recently for series of conferences on next year's $5,000,000 program of 10-12 pixs. These, Kane disclosed, will be aimed for the world-wide market and at least four—rated as specials—will be taken for American distribution. For American producers generally, Kane had this tip: British audiences are becoming increasingly discriminating.

• ERNST LUBITSCH •

Hot off the Hollywood wires, and right on the deadline for Santa's annual argosy down chimneys, came word (speaking of chimneys) that the industry's most famous smoker, the inimitable Mr. Lubitsch, had been signed by M-G-M as a producer-director to make "The Shop Around the Corner," and to direct Greta Garbo in "Ninotchka." Earlier in the year, Ernst puffed complacently on one of his collection of fresh stogies, and merely raised an eyebrow questioningly regarding reports that he was signing with Alexander Korda. Later, there were plans to produce under the Myron Selznick banner.

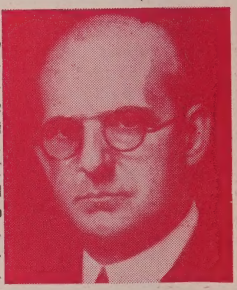
• MARK OSTRER •

While this exec.'s activities were essentially British, as was to be expected, his name loomed importantly on this side late in the year when Gaumont British Pictures Corp. of America, of which he is prexy, effected a deal which turned over distribution of GB product here to 20th Century-Fox. In the United Kingdom, as chairman of the board of GB Pictures, Ostrer was potent in Films Act discussion and in the GB-Odeon merger moves.

• JACK L. WARNER •

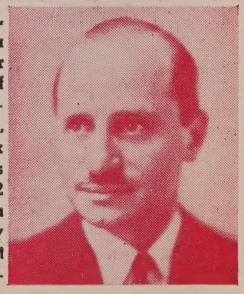
Action was the word for Warners out Burbank way this past twelve-month, and herewith see portrayed the dispenser of that action. Upward of 50 WB pix made turnstiles click merrily, and a like quantity for 1939-40 are set for Jack L.'s guiding hand. When the report was spread that musicals are becoming de trop, 'twas he who said this is erroneous, and boldly. In the Autumn, he packed his bag and slid over to England to take a good look-see at the new WB pix palace in London and to see that all was in order for his firm's British production at Teddington. On return to New York, he was a key in exec. huddles prior to taking off for the Coast again. Incidentally, the "action injection" policy, charged to Jack's care, opened up new and fertile fields of profits for Warners in many foreign lands.

• HERBERT J. YATES •



Train fare to be sure, but no fanfare, took this exec. of CFI and guardian of the Republic interests to the Coast on two occasions,—in the spring and in autumn time. First occasion was to spark-plug personally the Republic convention at Los Angeles, which proved to be a history-making conclave, since the company embarked on a bigger picture policy via increased budget. The Yates genius was decidedly evidenced when (a) he guided James R. Grainger into the presidency of Republic, and (b) led the CFI forces to a good year of results. For Republic, it was a banner one, in which new five-year deals were made with all franchise holders, and, coincidentally and consequently, business boomed.

• ARTHUR M. LOEW •



Europe, Asia, South America —they're all familiar places to the head of Loew's, Inc., international department, and his travels took him to far off lands during the last 12 months. Off on a world tour shortly after Christmas last year, Arthur M. returned in May, remained for a few months and next set out to spread the gospel of Leo to our Latin-American neighbors. Subsequently, from Mexico City, he reported that U. S. pictures were holding their lead in the Mexican market and saw benefits resulting from domestic production. Just to show what the foreign managers think of him, each office in his department is designating one month of the current season as "Arthur M. Loew Month."

• JOHN W. HICKS •

He was double head of Paramount's foreign department during 1938. Aside from the strenuous task of directing the company's international affairs, John W. took over Paramount's duty for the United Kingdom operations following the resignation of John Cecil Graham and until David E. Rose was appointed to succeed him. The early part of the year found him traveling over South America and, upon his return, he was added to Paramount's board of directors.

• WALTER WANGER •

It was a "nose-to-the-grindstone" year for this United Artists producer. Putting one picture after another into production, Wanger didn't even take time off to pay a visit to Broadway. Some unexpected publicity was thrown in his direction when his "Blockade" was assailed in some quarters for alleged sympathy to the Spanish Loyalist cause. In late December, he urged complete withdrawal of U. S. films from circulation in "dictator nations."

• FRANK CAPRA •

Again upheld his high standards of direction by turning out one of the year's most worthy pictures, the much, and rightly praised "You Can't Take It With You," which made b.o. turnstiles whirl merrily not only in the domestic field but abroad as well. When the industry's mighty megaphone wielders settled down last May to select a prexy, this same Mr. Capra was elected to the post hands down. As Winter time set in, came the report that the capable Mr. Capra would make a big gun production for the Columbia catalog with the comely Marlene Dietrich in the top role.

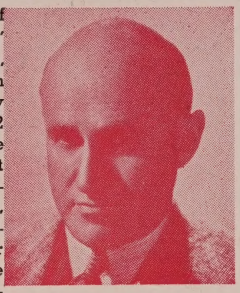
• JOHN HAY WHITNEY •

More active than ever before on behalf of Selznick-International, John Hay Whitney, board chairman, traveled to and from Hollywood almost continually, and sandwiched in a couple of European jaunts, with some new announcement regarding S-I the inevitable result of each trip. Instrumental in negotiating the M-G-M release for GWTW, he indicated as the year closed that he favored a renewal of United Artists' distributing pact.

• JOSEPH BERNHARD •

In the instance of the president and general manager of Warner theater operations, 1938 was one of marked activity, distinguished by his action in barring commercial films from Warner screens, in directing that the National Anthem be played daily in all Warner houses and in hailing the motion picture as the "unacknowledged spokesman for U. S. industries." In July, he was honored by New Jersey's Governor. In September, he urged the Philadelphia Real Estate Board organize a "Promote Philadelphia Committee" to build up civic pride.

• SAMUEL GOLDWYN •



¶ As one of United Artists' principal producers, Sam Goldwyn crowded many events into the 12 months of 1938. He attended important conferences in London and New York, inaugurated a profit-sharing plan for his executives, made the national headlines with his attack on double features and finished up the year with the appointment of James Roosevelt as a vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.

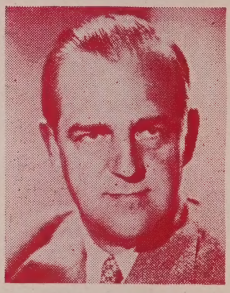
• W. F. RODGERS •

¶ Although Leo pays his salary, Bill Rodgers appeared to be working for the entire industry during the last 12 months. From the time he addressed a group of New England exhibitors in Boston and urged a better understanding between buyer and seller, his presence was not only asked but demanded at every exhibitor gathering. A leading role was his in the trade reform negotiations, during progress of which he was official spokesman for the distributors.

• WALT DISNEY •

¶ To paraphrase "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year," 1938 was Walt's greatest year in motion pictures. His "Snow White" was terrific hit; acquired rights to "Alice in Wonderland"; received honorary degrees from Harvard and Yale; put his employes on a five-day week for the Summer and accorded them share of "Snow White" profits; set seasonal budget at $3,000,000, placing six specials on lineup for RKO Radio; announced "name" voices for his productions; had four plants in full swing by Autumn; put "Pinocchio" into work; and gave to the world at large that beloved pastoral character, "Ferdinand,"—just to mention a few of his activities and triumphs.

• NED E. DEPINET •



¶ The State of Texas thought there was another land rush last March when Dallas was suddenly besieged by throngs of strangers from all parts of the U.S.A. The occasion, however, was a dinner for Ned who began his film career in the Southwest 30 years ago. And the film industry appeared to have turned out en masse for the event. The RKO boys then followed through and made the Depinet sales drive the biggest ever.

• MARY PICKFORD •

¶ "America's Sweetheart" divided her time between the affairs of United Artists and her own cosmetic company during 1938. The early year found her busy with the proposed deal whereby Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn would buy her interest, along with those of Charles Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks, in UA. When the plan fell through, Miss Pickford continued to give her attention in the active management of the company and at the same time founded an organization of her own to manufacture cosmetics.

• CHARLES R. ROGERS •

Stepping down as Universal's vice-president in charge of production, Charles R. received a new contract calling for some $297,000 and continued to serve on the company's directorate. Months later, he announced his intention of producing a picture dealing with the career of Gus Edwards to be released by Paramount.

• ARTHUR A. LEE •

Following lengthy negotiations, distribution of GB pictures in the U. S. by 20th-Fox was officially announced, with a joint production angle covering the deal's U.K. end. Before this arrangement was effected, Lee spent the year traveling throughout the country on behalf of GB, with his time so occupied there was no opportunity for a London trip. The year also brought plans, developed by Lee, for the distribution in the U. S. of GB's instructional films.

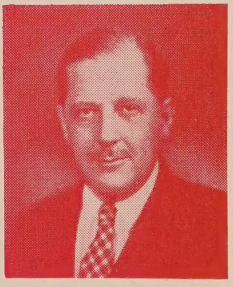
• ALEXANDER KORDA •

His was a prominent name in the trade news during 1938. Collapse of his deal with Samuel Goldwyn for the control of United Artists kept the trade wondering if negotiations would be reopened. After the deal was officially "cold," rumors linked him with joining every other company and Korda was kept busy denying them. Frequent trips to the U. S., realigning his distribution costs, production of top-ranking pictures and expanding his production programs were a few of the events that made the last 12 months an active period in his long career. At the year's end came the Pinewood-Denham studio merger.

• EDWARD L. ALPERSON •

A year that started off somewhat gloomy and ended with glowing brightness was Eddie Alperson's good fortune during 1938. Although his old Grand National company was in receivership, Eddie maintained an operating sales organization until the Educational-GN merger was completed, then stepped into the post of vice-president in charge of sales and built up a new selling unit. Also was elected to the GN board, but resigned both posts in February.

• THURMAN ARNOLD •



As technical director of the equity action against filmland, the name of this Assistant Attorney General of the U. S. flashed frequently from pix trade press headlines. Participated in frequent huddles anent the proceedings aimed at correction of alleged monopolistic practices. Urged the establishment by the D of J of regional offices, and "procedural inquiry" into trust laws, and, further, rapped the former government trust policy. Toward the year's end, Dr. Dearborn of N. Y. U. announced that Arnold had become a sponsor of Films for Democracy which will produce, distribute.

• GRADWELL L. SEARS •

A goodly share of WB's success in the distribution field was obviously due to young Mr. Sears, whose activities and interest in welfare of the company's pix covered the entire domestic market. Asked exhibs. to nix giveaways; participated in important exec. huddles on both coasts; was elected prexy of Vitagraph, and stressed the aid which films are to U. S. industries when he addressed the National Federation of Sales Executives in Dallas.

• HERMAN WOBBER •

Appointed general manager of distribution for 20th-Fox to succeed the late John D. Clark, under whom he had served, Herman Wobber plunged into his new job with customary thoroughness. Winding up his first term as sales head, he can look with satisfaction upon another fine year for the company, the Kent Drive scoring bigger returns than ever before. Nation-wide sales tours, visiting every branch of the company, were included in his crowded itinerary, and he recently held a meeting of the company's district managers on the Coast.

• HERBERT WILCOX •

Upon the completion of "Sixty Glorious Years," Herbert Wilcox came over from England and kept the trade guessing as to a new distribution setup. Then came an announcement of major importance: the concluding of a partnership deal with RKO whereby two to four pictures would be produced annually at a cost of $750,000 each and spanning a term of years. Wilcox then departed for England to set his new enterprise in motion.

• COL. WM. DONOVAN •

Not unnaturally, there was a legal setting for the Colonel's industry activities during 1938. There was, you may remember, that historic social meeting at his Washington residence of industry counsel and Thurman Arnold, Assistant U. S. Attorney General, and aides that followed the Government's New York equity suit. Subsequently, it was the Colonel who argued for a bill of particulars on behalf of the majors. Additionally, the Colonel played a prominent role in the RKO reorg. proceedings.

• DAVID O. SELZNICK •

Adding further successes during the past year to his impressive record of B. O. hits, David O. Selznick, S-I prexy and production head, wound up the year by actually starting work on the much discussed and long-impending "Gone with the Wind." Before he left New York after a vacation in Bermuda during November, he said GWTW would be ready for release next Fall, having previously closed a deal with M-G-M for distribution of the picture. Target for a number of rumors during the year, he strongly indicated a new deal was virtually set with United Artists for releasing S-I product, with an increased production scale promised.

• PAUL GULICK •

Called from retirement to which he had gone since leaving Universal the previous December, Paul was named industry coordinator of the big Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign in mid-summer. After putting the drive's wheels in motion and guiding its affairs until October, Paul turned the reins over to Business Manager Harold B. Franklin and then stepped into an important position in the advertising agency field.

• CHARLES E. McCARTHY •

Given the best 20th-Fox lineup in the history of the company to sell, the able and energetic advertising and publicity leader traveled to the Coast and back several times, and kept things humming at the home office without a letup. His campaign on "Alexander's Ragtime Band" set a new high for effectiveness. Result, "Alex" was socko all along the line.

• W. G. VAN SCHMUS •

It appears at first a paradox that this gentleman whose name is associated with things of great magnitude should launch the year at the industry's biggest showplace with a pix having the word "dwarfs" in the title. But the Disney opus, setting a Music Hall run record, proved to be so super-colossal that Mr. Van Schmus upheld his record as the exponent of the gargantuan. Subsequently, he added to his record by hosting a studio party for Olivia de Havilland. Dittoed at the time of the industry ad drive when he entertained a bevy of pix execs., and later went to Hollywood where he found himself in the strange position of being a guest. Led his Radio City Music Hall through a fine year, made that way via his discriminating taste for product, plus his solid showmanship.

• NATALIE KALMUS •

Here indeed, is the industry's foremost example of the wife who is interested in her husband's work and business. And thus it has been since Technicolor began. She is highly active in the realm of Technicolor production in England, and on this side of the big pond is also color director for Technicolor Motion Picture Corp. During 1938, as usual, she played a key role in the making of several of the year's standout attractions. Despite demands upon her skill and time as result of growing demand for Technicolir films, she manages, via efficiency, to divide her time between England and the U. S. as the necessity requires.

• TRUMAN TALLEY •

With the world in a state of alarm following war scares in Europe, Truman Talley, executive producer of 20th-Fox Movietone News, dashed to Europe to strategically place his far-flung camera crews and bolster all European offices with additional men and new equipment. In addition to his chores as newsreel head, he undertook the production of the new 20th-Fox shorts program. First shorts on new program, notably the Vyvyan Donner "Fashion Forecasts" and the Ed Thorgersen "Sports Reviews," scored quickly. Under his leadership, Movietone News completed another banner year.

• NEIL F. AGNEW •

¶ Piloting Paramount's sales organization and realigning it for greater efficiency kept Neil F. busy during the last 12 months. He also took an active part as a member of the general committee of the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign and as a representative on the distributors' trade practice negotiating committee. In December, he announced the creation of a new southern division and the consolidation of four exchanges with their nearest key branches.

• WILLIAM A. SCULLY •

¶ Closing a successful career as M-G-M's eastern sales manager, Bill Scully began the new year as Universal's sales manager and before 1938 was a week old he was elected vice-president. Then he settled down to the job of strengthening his sales organization, conducting regional sales meetings, attending product confabs at the studios and increasing Universal's business in general. Bill can feel justly proud of his first year at the helm of U's selling staff.

• Y. FRANK FREEMAN •

¶ As head of Paramount's theater operations, Y. Frank climaxed a long career as an exhibitor. But in November a new assignment enabled him to launch a new phase in his association with the motion -picture in dustry. Paramount decided he would be a valuable home office contact man at the studios, so he packed up and trekked west where he is watching production with the same intensity that he watched the operation of his vast theater domain.

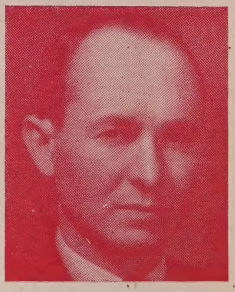
• HARRY GOLD •

¶ The resignation of George J. Schaefer as distribution head of United Artists resulted in a new selling system whereby the company's sales organization would be guided by two men. And Harry, who had been eastern division sales chief, was named to co-direct the activities of the company's domestic selling force, sharing the honor with his veteran associate, Jack Schlaifer.

• L. J. SCHLAIFER •

¶ As western division sales manager for United Artists, "Jack" Schlaifer did such a good job that he was named to co-direct the company's domestic sales organization when George J. Schaefer resigned as distribution head. And so with Harry Gold, who runs the East, the pair had inaugurated a new system of "dual control" selling which is proving successful.

• CARL LESERMAN •



¶ There is a striking similarity between football and selling. Both require strategy, stamina, spirit and speed. All four of these essential elements were part and parcel of the smooth team-working of Warners' sales machine. In Carl Leserman, assistant general sales manager, the WB warriors had a spectacular running mate for their star, Grad Sears. When the opposition was busy watching the latter, the former was carrying the mail and adding "drive" to the Sears Drive which piled up an unprecedented score. Last February, an announcement from the home office proclaimed that young Mr. Leserman hal been elevated to the vice-presidency of Vitagraph.

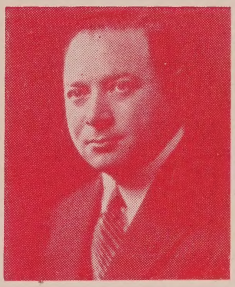
• DAVID SARNOFF •



¶ RCA's top executive supplied a major news story and accompanying headline of 1938 when, in October, he announced that his company and others would market television sets by April. The announcement signalized the approaching advent, at last, of commercial television. Subsequently came the disclosure that 50 makers of receiving sets held RCA licenses. During the Summer, Sarnoff studied television abroad, returned to assure that he found U. S., British television on par. In December came a flash from Philadelphia that Sarnoff had been designated to receive the annual award of the Poor Richard Club.

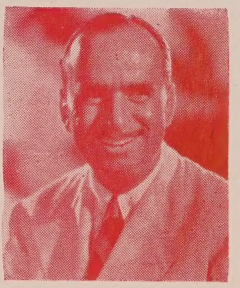
• EDWARD SMALL •

¶ Joining United Artists as a producer early in 1938, Edward Small committed himself for six pictures and turned out "The Duke of West Point" as the initial effort. He brought into his organization such veterans as Richard Rowland and Alfred E. Green, named J. E. Burch as production manager and placed J. J. Milstein in charge of his New York office. Aiming at big stories, Small announced that early pictures would include "The Maginot Line" and "My Son, My Son."

• DR. A. H. GIANNINI •

¶ Dr. A. H. Giannini provided a major headline of 1938 when he tendered his resignation as president and board chairman of United Artists in June and withdrew from the company "by mutual agreement." Justifiably, the Doctor's statement pointed to the company's greater prosperity during his regime. The Doctor made a vacation trip to Europe during the summer, later again coming East from Hollywood for the Columbia stockholders' meeting.

• DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS •



¶ Following a period of relative inactivity for the energetic Doug, the name of Fairbanks re-entered the industry headlines with a bang late in 1938 when he announced the formation of a new producing organization to be known as Fairbanks International. Plans call for a three-picture schedule during 1939, with tentative budget set over the $2,000,000 mark.

• LEON SCHLESINGER •

¶ Again made his precept "the maximum humor in minimum footage" as he turned out a bevy of swell shorts for Vitaphone. Numerically, these comprised some 26 "Merrie Melodies" and 16 "Looney Tunes." Signed the famous Jimmie Swinnerton, creator of the "Canyon Kiddies," to personally delineate several of these humorous creations for the "Merrie Melody" series for the 1939-40 season.

• FLOYD B. ODLUM •

¶ As president of Atlas Corp., and a member of the Atlas group, proponents of the RKO reorganization plan, this financial and film tycoon had a busy year of it. Out of Chicago, early in the span, issued word that UA's holdings of the Pickford-Chaplin-Fairbanks interest had not, as reported, been offered to Mr. Odlum. And that was that. Then on a later occasion another rumor sprang up to the effect that he was considering Italian production in a deal involving Emanuel Cohen. This, too, proved a will-o'-the-wisp. Meanwhile, the astute Mr. Odlum was sticking to his own "knitting,"—the guiding of his Atlas Corp.

• A. W. SMITH, JR. •

¶ Andy W. Smith, Jr., terminated his association with United Artists in early September, resigning as the company's able general sales manager, and shortly thereafter sailed for a well-earned European vacation. Reports that he would become affiliated with a theater circuit were heard, but at the year-end, Smith was still to disclose his plans.

• HAL ROACH •

¶ Filmdom's veteran comedy producer began a new chapter in his career when, in May, he terminated his long association with M-G-M and signed an eight-year pact as a producer for United Artists. That in itself was news, but a bit of sentiment crept into the deal when it was announced that no longer would he be the daddy of "Our Gang," which became an M-G-M property. However, his ability as an "A" producer was proved by such bell ringers as "There Goes My Heart" and "Topper Takes a Trip."

• FREDERIC ULLMAN, JR. •

¶ Vice-prexy of Pathe News as well as Pathe Film, the year 1938 was a busy one for this hard working exec. With ominous rumblings emanating from the European scene he made a hasty dash to the Continent to consolidate his field forces, later dispatching an aide to personally supervise operations when war seemed imminent. He also visited the Coast and worked on a plan to provide the newsreel with additional laboratory facilities in several cities. Production of a new series of shorts was likewise added to his activities.

• CHARLES L. GLETT •

¶ The revival of a desirable trend in the motion picture industry — independent production for major release—found realization in 1938 at Eastern Service Studios, on Long Island, thanks to the energy and co-operation of two executives, Frank K. Speidell, president, and Charles L. Glett, vice-president in charge of studio operations. First features to roll in this revival of Eastern production were Harold Orlob's " . . . one-third of a nation . . ." and William K. Howard's "Back Door to Heaven."

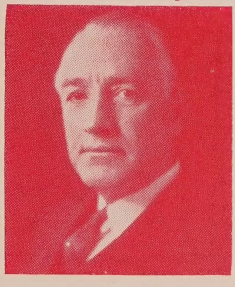
• W. J. HUTCHINSON •

¶ Returning to New York a few days before Christmas, Walter J. Hutchinson, able leader of the 20th-Fox foreign forces, closed a year that was replete with activity. During the year he traveled to Mexico and the Caribbean territory, to Europe for sales meetings, and then wound up his activities with a 30,000-mile tour of South America, South Africa and Europe. Upon his return he said that his company was looking to South America and South Africa as great potential markets. Reported better foreign business for the year.

• SAM SAX •

¶ Versatility was again the long suit of the production executive of Warner Bros.' Eastern Vitaphone Studio. Celebrated the second year of operations for the expanded Brooklyn plant, which is the largest in the East, by having a direct hand in the making of more than 90 shorts during 1938. Some idea of the variety of his capabilities can be gleaned from the fact that he made all of WB's two-reel comedies; participated in the turning out of the Floyd Gibbons series, orchestra reels and novelties.

• JOHN E. OTTERSON •

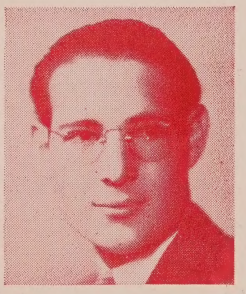


¶ Shortly before the industry celebrated Washington's Birthday, this veteran film executime announced the incorporation of two companies, Inter-Allied Films Corp., the parent organization, and Tri-National Films, Inc., the distribution unit. As president of both, he immediately cleared the decks for action. In June, he sailed for Europe, returning around Aug. 1 with revelation that he had acquired 15 French and 10 British features and had established offices abroad in both Paris and London. U. S. franchise deals followed.

• J. ROBERT RUBIN •

¶ It's not always the man whose name is most frequently found in the headlines who writes the most industry history. For instance, there's Loew's vice-president and general counsel whose wide range of Metro endeavor was traced authoritatively during the trial of the Loew minority stock-holders' suit: "All activities of the studio that occur East of the Rockies come through my office." Yet despite these arduous demands, he found time to lead the Greater New York Fund's drive in the film industry.

• A. SCHNEIDER •



¶ This Horatio Alger-like and likeable gentle man, who, through his business life with Columbia Pictures Corp. rose from a post in the bookkeeping dept. to the treasurership of that organization, continued during 1938 his unusual service to the company. 'Twas he who, in early September last, announced that Columbia's net for the 12 months ended June 25, 1938, was, after the usual copious tax and other reductions, close to $200,000. You will gather some idea of the complexity of young Treasurer Schneider's tasks when it is cited that, in those same 12 months, Columbia's gross income on rentals and accessories was in excess of $20,000,000.

• DAVID E. ROSE •

¶ Resigning in May as Samuel Goldwyn's vice-president, David E. became head of Paramount's foreign production activities in June. Then, in mid-December, he was named managing director of Paramount's United Kingdom affairs. In addition to holding these important posts, Rose can make a bid for fame as one of the industry's champion Atlantic commuters, having made six round trips between England and New York during 1938.

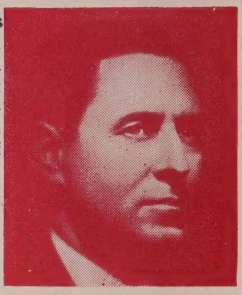
• ED KUYKENDALL •

¶ Battling the Neely Bill, advocating the MPTOA 10-point plan, holding trade practice conferences, attending unit meetings and conducting the big convention in Oklahoma City were just a few of the activities which kept the MPTOA president occupied in 1938. In addition, he was re-elected to head the national organization and topped it all off by being made a member of the Osage Indian tribe and given the title of "Big Chief of the Moving Shadows."

• NATHAN YAMINS •

¶ As president of Allied States, Nate Yamins worked unceasingly to put his organization's aims into effect. Re-elected to the presidency in January, Nate strove to widen the body's legislative program, push theater divorcement and establish a fair trade practice program, helped to put over a rousing national convention in Pittsburgh and set on Allied's negotiating panel during the trade reform confabs. It was an active year for an active man.

• O. HENRY BRIGGS •



¶ Renamed as Pathe Film Corp. prexy and also elected as a member of the Allegheny Corp. board, the name of O. Henry Briggs found a prominent place in newspaper headlines throughout the year. A dissolution plan for Pathe physical assets was promulgated by Briggs and his associates late in the year with a time element defeating the plan in its original form. A new plan was immediately promised for 1939. Briggs contract with Pathe was renewed for three years.

• JULES BRULATOUR •

¶ A miss may be as good as a mile, but the miles and miles of pix film are only as good as this mister. For here in person is the king of the "ammunition purveyors" for filmland,—the chieftain of J. E. Brulatour, Inc., with principal "arsenals" at Fort Lee, Chicago, and, of course, Hollywood. Now just how commercially good Mr. Brulatour was to the industry in 1938 can be appraised via the stupendous fact that he issued to it something approximating a billion feet of film! If you are Ripley-minded, it would require about 18 years for the Brulatour footage of 1938 to pass through a projector at the rate of 90 feet per minute. Some screening!

• AL LICHTMAN •

¶ Except for one quick trip to New York, Al kept himself all wrapped up in studio activities during the last 12 months, even being too busy to take a contemplated European voyage in April. However, his British production survey during the previous year paved the way for Loew's two top-notch English pictures, "A Yank at Oxford" and "The Citadel."

• WILLIAM GOETZ •

¶ The close of 1938 found the hard working and able 20th-Fox executive so busy at his desk that he was still at the studio although he had promised himself a long vacation. As executive assistant to Darryl Zanuck, he literally had his duties doubled while Zanuck and Joseph M. Schenck, board chairman, were in Europe. However, additional work is nothing new to W. G. and he took over the production reins along with his regular duties. Net result, the well-geared organization kept turning out pictures without a hitch, hit release dates on the nose.

• PHIL REISMAN •

¶ "Sailing, Sailing Over the Bounding Main" was the theme song of RKO's foreign department chief during 1938. Early summer found him pepping up his sales staffs in South America and in the fall he was conducting sales meetings in London and Paris. A sales drive in his honor was launched by his foreign staff and upon his return to the U. S. in November he announced that RKO's European business had trebled over that of the previous year.

• NAT LEVINE •

¶ After leaving M-G-M in March, Nat's name was closely identified with that of E. W. Hammons in the latter's Educational-Grand National merger. But after a series of conferences, Nat withdrew from the picture and reports flew thick and fast that he was going back to independent production. However, all such rumors were disspelled late in August when he re-joined M-G-M as a producer.

• WINFIELD SHEEHAN •

¶ Nineteen thirty-eight returned Winfield Sheehan to the production fold as the result of a one-picture contract signed with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The former Fox Film production chief announced he would make "Florian," story to which he already had held the rights. Further production activity by Sheehan was anticipated.

• SOL LESSER •

¶ Old man 1938 was a big year on the Lesser calendar, with one announcement after another of importance to exhibitors appearing in the papers. He moved his production organization to a new lot and then announced a $2,000,000 plus budget for five features. He also went in for midget pix. In the Fall he announced that he would aim all his productions for children. A number of players, writers and executives were added to his staff during the year, and he starts 1939 with a strong production organization and an ambitious program.

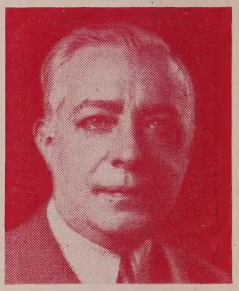
• SAM E. MORRIS •

¶ February found Lincoln, Washington, and Sam E. Morris honored. The latter by his cohorts in the WB foreign sales department. And speaking of sales, off sailed Mr. Morris in March for Europe to see that all was well as possible with his Warner forces and customers overseas. Bobbed back home to his N. Y. desk for awhile, then retraced his steps o'er the Atlantic, this time for another check-up and to cheer the opening of the new Warner Theater, on the site of Daly's, in London. Was a key man throughout the annum on all aspects of Warner foreign policy.

• T. KENNEDY STEVENSON •

¶ On Sept. 1, Erpi's board held a special session, purpose of which was to name a presidential successor to the late Whitford Drake. When the huddle ended, a veteran of Erpi, from the founding of this WE subsidiary in 1927, and, incidentally, a veteran of WE itself from away back in 1914, found himself elected top man. That was T. Kennedy Stevenson. Well-known in pix industry channels long before his elevation to hte driver's seat, the new prexy was hailed by his many friends wishing him in the historic post a colossal success. Conscientious Mr. Stevenson graciously took cognizance of the good-will expressed and immediately set to work manufaturing more of that intangible but essential business commodity for his Erpi legions.

• EMIL C. JENSEN •



¶ Meet the industry's "Revival King." During 1938, he searched through the vaults of Artcinema Associates, Inc., found the negatives of certain Rudolph Valentino productions, and as the saying is, "the rest is history." Modernized and streamlined with music and sound, "Son of the Sheik" was a sensation of the summer, both from the b.o. and publicity standpoint.

• A. MONTAGUE •

¶ Told the assembled delegates at Columbia's sales convention that showmanship is not a lost art. Proved by his personal direction that the art of sales and selling isn't lost either. Piled up a rugged record for repeat contracts plus new business during 1938, and with the near departure of the year, he departed too,—for Honolulu. From there he okayed plans for Columbia's new sales drive based on personal achievement of its forces. Incidentally he cabled casually to the home office that he had sewed up a fine collection of pix contracts in the Hawaiian Islands.

• GEORGE W. WEEKS •

¶ In March George W. came out of temporary retirement, following his resignation from GB the previous September, and joined Monogram as its general sales manager. No sooner was he in office than he started to jump back and forth across the continent, strengthening sales staffs and going after bigger and better business. And from all indications he got what he went after.

• L. W. CONROW •

¶ Celebrated in December, last, the first anniversary of founding of Altec Service Corp., whose prexy he has been since organization's birth. Greatly expanded firm's activities by signing on the dotted line an avalanche of new customers; by establishing new warehouses in New York and Los Angeles; by extending benefits of group buying; and rendering unusually valuable service to customers. This latter aspect of the Conrow year was brilliantly exemplified when the early autumn hurricane struck New England. Altec had its subscribers in that area back in shape pronto, —and how!

• LOUIS DE ROCHEMONT •

¶ Right off the reel in 1938 came March of Time's release re Nazi Germany, produced as are all of M of T's issues by the screen's journalistic wizard portrayed herewith. The pix created something of a storm as to whether the subject was pro-Nazi. But the proof of the pudding was that Washington bigwigs liked it and the Nazi gents overseas didn't. Later in the year, sandwiched between several enthralling releases, came a film compilation of the Czech situation. It provoked quite a controversy in England, and again brought blistering rebuke from Germany. But virtually unanimous was world opinion that M of T was performing magnificent, constructive service under the De Rochemont editorship.

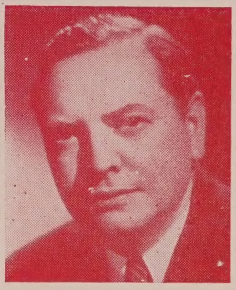
• EDWARD FINNEY •

¶ Over to the Monogram corral went youthful Mr. Finney with his burning ambition to make bigger and better Westerns than ever. And he did, much to the liking of prairie pix fans everywhere. Under his production banner rode out several lively sagebrush sagas starring the versatile dual-gun-toting Tex Ritter. Toward the year's end, it was rumored that the energetic Ed was sitting by a Hollywood campfire and contemplating further fields of cactus to conquer, namely, providing his new alma mater, Monogram, with a bigger supply of horse operas for 1939-40.

• C. C. PETTIJOHN •

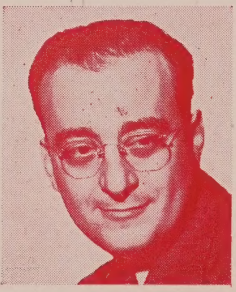
¶ Militantly sought, and urged others to seek, friendly rapprochement of all ends of filmland. When draft of distrib-exhib. trade practice reforms was issued, he scanned it diligently and sympathetically, then declared that clarification could be made easily of the points of difference. In September, he urged doctrine of industry self-regulation at Wisconsin re-union. Began the year by calling at the White House, and later took a month's vacation in Europe. Applied himself, in his capacity as general counsel for MPPDA, like a proverbial Trojan in the interests of the industry's welfare.

• WILLIAM J. GERMAN •



Rounded out his 16th year in the service of Jules E. Brulatour, Inc., of which firm he more than just happens to be vice-president and general manager. Took a lively interest in the further effectuated improvements of motion picture film, and rendered to his industry and filmland the benefits of his wide and intensive knowledge. Active on both the eastern and western fronts, he was in large measure responsible for the consumption in 1938 of something closely approximating 1,000,000,000 feet of raw stock by the studios.

• RUBE JACKTER •



Columbia's assistant sales manager was synonymous in 1938 with the word "drive." And that he did continually and proficiently. At the year's outset he chairmaned his organization's sales campaign. In early June, his associates helped him celebrate his wedding anniversary. He was a mainspring at organization's Chicago meeting, and, all in all, he did so well that when December rolled around, there he was once more in the chairmanship of Columbia's new personal achievement sales drive.

• HAL B. WALLIS •

As associate executive in charge of production for Warner Bros., Hal B. Wallis is directly responsible for a majority of the WB pictures which have made box office history during 1938. Between pictures, Wallis found time to go to Mexico City to collect authentic data for "Juarez" the Paul Muni-Bette Davis production, and make a trip to New York to examine the legit stage situation from the angle of screen material.

• ROY E. LARSEN •

Here is the major domo of Life and The March of Time. Appropriately, without resort to anything remotely resembling a merger, he continued to put "life" into the March of Time. Kept an eagle eye, and a gratified one, upon M of T's pix releases which were invariably crammed with high interest. Not a twelve-months in the reel's history found the spotlight shining so brightly on the venture as in 1938, or several issues created such a stir that their contents grabbed headlines in newspapers in many quarters of the civilized world (or is it?).

• ABRAM F. MYERS •

As Allied's standard-bearer, Abram F. was in the thick of all battles pertaining to theater divorcement, Neely Bill, trade practice parleys and trade reforms in general. If you ask him, he'll probably tell you that his biggest job of the year was his fight to uphold the constitutionality of the North Dakota divorcement statute.

• JOSEPH B. KLECKNER •

In the nation's affairs, as well as the industry's, he played a prominent role. Off to Washington he went early in the year to gain alleviation for the "small business" men of the U. S.,—a most commendable move since J. B. is himself decidedly a big business exec. There urged establishment of a U. S. credit agency; served on the advisory committee for "small business," and his proposal for loans to latter was adopted. Subsequently, he asked easing of loans to aid indie exhibs. to rebuild. Headed up his powerful Motiograph organization; made personnel stronger; announced offering of seven models in Mirrophonic Sound; was gratified by big installation biz.

• SCOTT R. DUNLAP •

Success of of Monogram during 1938 brings forcibly to mind that there were definite reasons on both Coasts and in between. The factor hard by the blue Pacific was company's vice - prexy in charge of production. Indeed, our Mr. Dunlap had pix manufacturing on such a smooth basis there that things were always ahead of schedule. Coming to New York when the 1938-39 season was three months old, he told the world that studios generally were hitting terrific pace, and that all Hollywood execs. were convinced that the doldrums had been shed. During visit he sat in with Prexy Ray Johnston on the Monogram set-up in England.

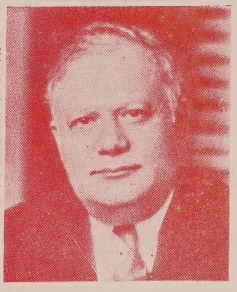
• T. P. LOACH •

Named as a vice - president of Pathe Film Corp. in April, this able young executive assumed additional duties; he already was serving as treasurer. With the Pathe liquidation plan brewing during the waning months of the year, he was actively engaged in working out details and giving expert advice on technical aspects. He also made several trips during the year to survey Pathe holdings and investigate properties in which the company was considering investments.

• MERVYN LEROY •

Upon the delivery of "Fools for Scandal" for Warner Bros. in March, Mervyn packed up his duds and moved over to M-G-M as one of the top producers for Leo. His first picture on his new contract was "Dramatic School," which had its release in the late Fall. Then he went to work on "Stand Up and Fight" and an ambitious group of pictures is slated to come under his jurisdiction during the current year.

• EDWARD A. GOLDEN •



Up the ladder he did go,—to vice - presidency of Monogram. Was sparkplug in numerous activities having to do with better relations between branches of the industry, particularly as they affect exhibitors. In October, the industry gave him a swell testimonial banquet out Minneapolis way. And when the MPTOA clans gathered in Oklahoma City, the Golden Boy urged test of theater divorcement. Incidentally, while in Oklahoma City he was made an Oklahoma Colonel, the first pix gent to be so honored.

• NATHAN D. GOLDEN •

Chief of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce, and a member of SMPE, the International Alliance of M. P. Projectionists of the U. S. and Canada, the American Projectionist Society, and member of the Projection Advisory Council, this gentleman was well occupied. He declared in October that the trade stand vs. punitive foreign practices is probably justified. Too, he urged on all pix branches the wisdom of conciliation.

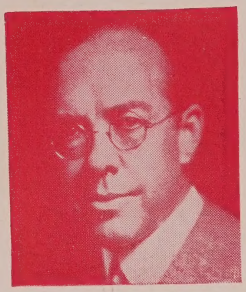
• STANTON GRIFFIS •



¶ Active in all branches of Paramount's affairs, the chairman of the company's executive committee spent a busy year. After announcing that Paramount would enter the television field through a stock buy in Du Mont laboratories, he hopped over to Europe to look over television developments on that side of the Atlantic and pave the way for extensive production activities in England.

• JULES LEVY •

¶ Meet RKO Radio's sales chief who led his sales army to a new high mark during the Ned Depinet Drive. Jules spent almost as much time on planes and trains in his swings around the country to pep up his regional crews as he did behind his desk in the RKO Building. And his efforts were gratifyingly fruitful, judging by the reported volume of sales chalked up during 1938.

• CHARLES EINFELD •

¶ Warners' advertising and publicity head, who, you will recall, is also a v.-p. of Vitagraph Corp., spent most of the year headquartering out Burbank way, but did visit importantly the home office early last November for exec. confabs and to set big campaigns for big pix. Issued a clarion call to all exhibs. to step up their advertising in newspapers, and to cease scatteration of such expenditures in channels where return of results is dubious. Worked hammer and tongs in the interests of WB product. New Year's bells and whistles found him back on the Coast, having accompanied Jack Warner there from New York.

• ARTHUR W. KELLY •

¶ United Artists' foreign department head sailed quietly for Europe and South Africa in the late Fall on an unannounced mission. Later it was learned that he had gone to South Africa for the purpose of negotiating deals which would materially strengthen UA's distribution position in that territory. Continental Europe and England were other ports of call during this transatlantic sojourn.

• LOUIS NIZER •

¶ The film fan club whose members meet trains each morn in Grand Central Terminal in hope of seeing pix celebrities have missed a bet by failing to follow this young legalist around, whose appearance in court is invariably on behalf of a film celebrity. Consummated litigations successfully in 1938 for Louise Rainer, Harold Lloyd, Frances Farmer, Dorothy Lamour, Sam Jaffe, John Garfield, Phil Baker, Phillips Lord, and others. Was additionally successful in handling Pathe's action vs. du Pont. Represented at the bar our Motion Pictures' Greatest Year. Chairmaned industry's Red Cross and United Hospitals drives, plus bevy of other committees. Wrote many articles on law; spoke frequently via radio; and lectured on films at both Columbia and N. Y. U.

• WALTER E. GREEN •

¶ From all sections of the land during 1938 came reports of improvements in equipment being effectuated by pix houses, and, with monotonous regularity these reports mentioned National Theater Supply as the source of sales. The prexy, as well as a director, of this organization is none other than Walter Green, and much of the progressiveness, initiative and confidence which was evidenced by the NTS sales staff was inspired by this head man. To augment his usual busy year, up stepped International Projector Corp. with its new Simplex Four Star Sound. Incidentally, Mr. Green is also an official of IPC.

• SAM DEMBOW, JR. •

¶ Early April headlines proclaimed this veteran showman as having bought into F & M. Then followed his taking over the company's vice-presidency. As executive in charge of contact with film companies and the industry generally, he had absolute "say so" re the bookings nationally for F & M's some 60 theaters. Autumn found him making careful plans to expand the exhibition end of the company as soon as the nation's economic signal flags flashed "clearer sailing."

• HENRY KING •

¶ Veteran of the industry, this able director was represented in 1938 by two outstanding 20th Century-Fox productions which mopped up at box offices everywhere. So it was hardly surprising that the year-end critics' symposium conducted by THE FILM DAILY saw both King pix, "In Old Chicago" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band," winning "Ten Best" accolades.

• JACK SKIRBALL •

¶ The Educational-Grand National merger placed the Educational sales manager in the role of production head of the combined companies. Active in working out the details of the merger, Jack, upon its completion, went to the Coast where he co-ordinated the production angles of the new setup. He also was one of the organizers of Arcadia Pictures, one of the producing units for GN.

• ROBERT GILLHAM •

¶ Promoting bigger and better advertising campaigns for Paramount pictures kept Bob Gillham burning the midnight oil in New York and hopping back and forth between the East and West Coasts during 1938. In addition, he was one of the boys who devoted a maximum of time and effort to the preparation of the layouts for the Motion Pictures Greatest Year campaign and was active in the advertising side of the drive from its inception.

• HOWARD DIETZ •

¶ Directing the huge advertising and publicity machine of M-G-M is a whale of a job in itself, but being a glutton for punishment Howard took on another big assignment as boss of the Motion Pictures Greatest Year advertising committee and started the ball rolling for the cause both in New York and Hollywood. Another important event in his life occurred in July when he became a papa.

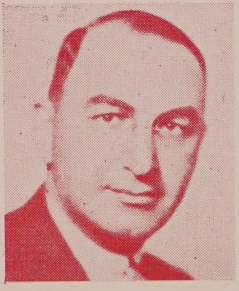
• MORRIS J. SIEGEL •

¶ Republic's sales conclave at Los Angeles was occasion for announcing that the 1938-39 season would witness a boost in the production budget, plus the company entering what amounts to a big pictures' policy. This was music to the ears of Moe Siegel, chieftain of Republic Productions, Inc., who set the stage at once to carry out the edict. To centralize authority for the plans, he was designated as sole executive producer for Republic.

• HARRY H. THOMAS •

¶ When Tri-National sprang into being, in order to furnish U. S. screens with top flight foreign pictures, the problem of effective and efficient distribution of the attractions naturally arose, and then also arose to the occasion the astuteness of John E. Otterson, for he selected the excellently-qualified Harry Thomas to take over this end of the business.

• BEN GOETZ •



¶ As head of M-G-M's production activities in England, Ben had a most active year in 1938. As proof of this statement, one only has to be reminded that such topnotchers as "A Yank at Oxford" and "The Citadel" were produced under his supervision, and as this is being written he is concentrating on the production of "Good-Bye Mr. Chips." Ben also found time to make two quick trips to the U. S.

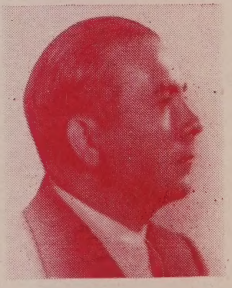
• DAVID LOEW •

¶ Made pixgoers' lives lighter and brighter by turning out a trio of features starring the ever-amusing Joe E. Brown. First of these films to flash forth during the annum was "Wide Open Faces." There followed "The Gladiator." Both of the foregoing were released by Columbia. Then came "Flirting with Fate," which the young scion of the House of Loew released via Loew's, Inc.

• JOHN E. JOSEPH •

¶ At about the time that 1938 was born, John E. came to Universal as head of publicity and advertising. Before settling down to the big job of plugging "U" pix, he realigned and expanded his department, shifting New York men to the Coast and strengthening his organization in general. Then, when all was set, he moved his headquarters to the studios and left Lou Pollock to handle the New York details.

• SPYROS SKOURAS •



¶ Credit one of the biggest bombshells of the year in the exhibition ranks to Spyros Skouras. The energetic and able head of the far-flung National Theaters circuit decided that giveaways can be eliminated and showmanship restored. He dropped all giveaways in branches of the FWC group, and successfully, it is reported, with operating income of circuit upped considerably. Plans complete elimination of all giveaways through entire chain.

Presiding at sales meetings, holding telephonic conferences with his field leaders and serving on MPGY general board along with his usual round of activities kept him busy, not to mention several cross country junkets on company business.

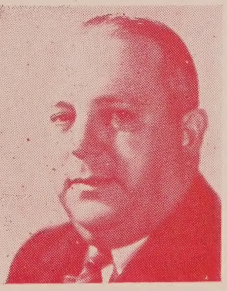
• LYNN FARNOL •

¶ Back in 1934 Lynn left Samuel Goldwyn to join the Donahue & Coe advertising agency, but in July of last year he was back in the United Artists fold as director of publicity and advertising. And since that time he has been hopping back and forth between the coasts in the interest of UA's product and putting over some neat space-grabbing stunts.

• WILLIAM LE BARON •

¶ Reports that Bill Le Baron was leaving the production berth at Paramount were dispelled in April when he signed a new three-year contract. Then, in November, came bigger and more important news; it was announced that Adolph Zukor was leaving the West Coast to become the company's good will ambassador to the world, and Le Baron was placed in full charge of studio operations.

• CLIFF WORK •



¶ On May 19, Charles R. Rogers stepped out as head of Universal studios and Cliff Work stepped in. And in so doing, Cliff concluded more than 20 years of service with RKO and Orpheum, his last post being RKO's divisional chief in San Francisco and manager of the Golden Gate Theater in that city. Except for one trip East in July he has kept his nose to the proverbial grindstone at the studios throughout the year. In December he was made a member of the AMPP board.

• S. BARRET McCORMICK •

¶ That some 50 RKO pix were released in 1938, and that each had to have a sturdy campaign attest to the fact that firm's publicity-ad head was perpetually occupied. To make the most of crowded hours, he took to the air on five round trips 'twixt New York and Hollywood. During July, August and September, the midnight lamps could be seen a-burning in the McCormick bailiwick in towering Radio City, and then there issued forth his by-product,—the ingenious Publicity Section of MPGY's campaign book. Definitely outstanding, too, were his superlative campaigns for "Snow White" at the year's outset, and for "Gunga Din" at the year's close.

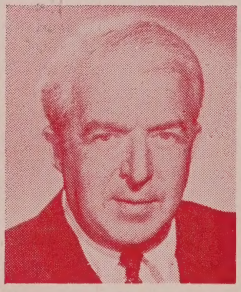
• FREDERICK L. HERRON •

¶ Unprecedented were the repeated and vital occasions upon which the spotlight of industry interests illuminated the foreign field. The year witnessed both progress and recession of American film fortunes in lands afar, but picture execs. retained calm and confidence that, whatever the occasion or circumstance, the most would be gained and the least lost via the policies and advice of Frederick L. Herron. Almost simultaneously, he unravelled problems affecting the U. K., New South Wales, Canada, Britain's Colonial empire, Continental Europe, Japan and Latin America. Indeed his status was Filmland's Secretary of State. As treasurer and board member of MPPDA, his voice was an important one in general industry matters.

• E. V. RICHARDS •

¶ Paramount's theater partner in the South increased his holdings in Paramount Pictures in May when it was announced that he had acquired 2,500 shares of the company's 6 p.c. convertible 2nd preferred stock, thereby adancing the number of shares he holds to 7,500. During a visit to New York he made it clear to the trade press that his operating territory was not dual bill-conscious and would remain a single feature area.

• HARRY SHERMAN •



¶ The "Hopalong" producer hopped along himself during the past year and continued to produce Class A westerns. Inking William Boyd's name to a new contract in February, Harry maintained his pictures' and his own popularity by giving the exhibs the kind of pictures they like. In August he announced that he was boosting the budgets on his "Hopalongs" and in November he came through with the announcement that he would spend $750,000 on a picture based on the life of Al Jennings.

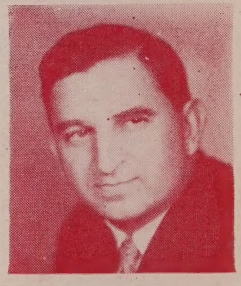
• EDWIN P. KILROE •

¶ One of 1938's vital problems was that of international copyright, and consequently this expert on the subject, who long has been the chairman of MPPDA's Copyright Committee, and copyright advisor to 20th-Fox and Movietone News, played a standout role. At a series of conferences held at Columbia University and the Bar Association Bldg., Mr. Kilroe's treasury of knowledge was indispensable and built film industry prestige with the sub-committees which were off-shoots of the Carnegie eace Foundation,—namely those of the American National Committee on International Intellectual Co-operation, and the Committee for Study of Copyright, respectively chairmaned by Prof. James Shotwell of Columbia U. and Dr. Leland of Washington, D. C.

• HARRY GOETZ •

¶ Confining his activities mainly to stage productions in association with Max Gordon, Harry, during 1938, also began to assemble story properties with the view of eventually returning to production. One of his big moments of the year was the sale of the rights to "The Women," in which he owned an interest, to M-G-M. His Reliance organization had a busy year re-issuing "The Count of Monte Cristo" and other past successes.

• HAROLD B. FRANKLIN •



¶ Shortly after the industry launched its Movies Are Your Best Entertainment campaign in a concerted effort to stimulate box-office biz, Harold B., veteran of all branches, was called to the colors as business manager, functioning under Chairman George J. Schaefer. Drawing upon the experience thus gained, Franklin, at the year-end, was drafting a 1939 drive plan for early submission.

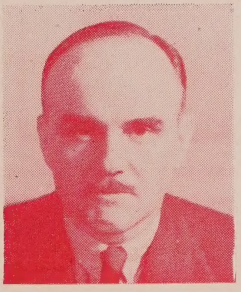
• HARRY D. BUCKLEY •

With usual and characteristic adeptness, this treasurer of UA guided the physical financial destinies of the organization, and, as the old year went riding out, the UA distribution "take" was declared to be at least equal to the previous year of 1937. Aside from his treasurership duties, he served virtually the entire span as an MPPDA board member, finally passing the baton on to Maurice Silverstone. Further, he continued as a member of the board of UA Theaters, in whose councils he was a vital voice.

• H. M. RICHEY •

His years of experience as business manager of Michigan Allied and as public relations chief for Co-operative Theaters established "Rich" as a valuable man for any organization. And so RKO Radio was quick on the draw in October when President George J. Schaefer appointed Richey director of exhibitor relations for the company and assigned him as "trouble shooter" in the field. Both RKO and its accounts are now benefitting by his experience.

• E. I. SPONABLE •



He completed the mechanical modernization of all 20th Century-Fox Movietone News production centers, starting in New York and ending at Sydney, Australia. He personally supervised the installation of the new equipment throughout the British Isles and on the Continent. This included the installation of the latest RCA and Western Electric sound studios at London and Paris. In addition E. I. supervised the building of a new large sound stage for Movietone in New York.

• SAMUEL J. BRISKIN •

Among the important executive shifts which marked A.D. 1938, was that involving Samuel J. Briskin who had been serving as vice-president in charge of production on the Coast lot of RKO-Radio Pictures. Early in the year the shift took place,—to Columbia's studios, — and was very much in the nature of a homecoming, since the gentleman in question had served under the Cohn banners for some eight years prior to the hop over to RKO.

• CHARLES C. MOSKOWITZ •

As chief executive of Loew's New York circuit of theaters, comprising some 75 houses, he piloted the group with outstanding success through the troublous 1938. He brought about a number of amicable arrangements with labor groups which promise lasting good effects not only for Loew's, but for the entire theater industry in the New York area. He is continuing his efforts to eliminate money "games" and give-aways in this territory.

• DENNIS F. O'BRIEN •

Dennis F. O'Brien, dean of the legal profession, has been connected with theatrical and motion picture stars since 1909, a contemporary of Nathan Burkan's general counsel of United Artists Corp. and active in the various negotiations between the partner-owners of United Artists Corp.; attorney for Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, George M. Cohan, Sam Harris, Irving Berlin and Richard Barthelmess.

• ARTHUR F. DRISCOLL •

¶ Arthur F. Driscoll is daily engaged in litigation on behalf of United Artists Corp. and various other theatrical and motion picture clients, especially including many matters involving copyright and is presently engaged in the prosecution of the important "Letty Lynton"-Sheldon-Barnes v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer litigation in which certain phases of the copyright law will finally be determined.

• EDMUND REEK •

¶ Completing his first year as general manager of Movietone News, which produces the 20th Century-Fox Movietone News and the shorts released by that company, Edmund Reek is a history-making recorder of history. The record of his far-flung staff is a complete pictorial history of the world during 1938. Keeping this staff functioning smoothly has been his chief occupation, in addition to personally supervising the makeup of the American release.

• EDWARD C. RAFTERY •

¶ Edward C. Rafferty has been called in frequently by the various film companies to handle the difficulties of the many anti-Trust suits now pending all over the U. S.; was rushed to London by the stockholders of United Artists Corp. to handle the legal phases of their negotiations; was co-counsel with his partner, Arthur F. Driscoll, in the "Letty Lynton" plagiarism which probably will establish the law of copyright in the motion picture business.

• JOSEPH R. VOGEL •

¶ His direction of the operation of Loew's Theaters outside of New York City was marked for continued success in 1938. He is recognized as one of the really practical theater operating heads in the industry; 29 years with Loew's, from usher to a top executive, gives him an authoritative background that is reflected in the policies of Loew's out-of-town circuit. In 1938, he gave personal supervision to bolstering and correcting weak box-office spots with marked success. Outstanding progress made by the Poll circuit, since coming under Loew operation, is attributed to his administration.

• OSCAR A. DOOB •

¶ He attributes the success of Loew's Theater circuit to "fine operating policies and the best pictures." However, it is more than probable that the manner in which he directs the spending of nearly $4,000,000 in advertising annually may also have a part in the consistent box-office success of Loew's. In 1938 he further intensified promotion activities for the 75 Loew houses in the New York methopolitan area and amplified the home office advertising service to the 40 other cities in which Loew's has houses.

FILM DAILY GOLF TOURNAMENTS

THE eighteenth anniversary of the perennially popular Film Daily Golf Tournament takes place this year. The event was inaugurated by the late Joseph Dannenberg, editor of THE FILM DAILY, and each year it grows more popular as a get-together for the industry in the East.

The first tournament took place at the Oak Ridge Country Club in Tuckahoe, N. Y., on September 27, 1921. Team play was introduced in 1928, when the Motion Picture Club entered a foursome, which was challenged by the Lambs Club team. The E. F. Albee Memorial Trophy was the prize, and has so remained to this day. During the next ten years, the Motion Picture Club aggregation met the team of the AMPA. In 1937 the match play was enlarged with the competition of foursomes from several of the major companies.

Capacity attendance is the rule at the annual tournaments. More than 200 golfers tee off at each event, which finishes in the evening with a gay banquet, speeches done in the jocular manner, and the awarding of prizes. Handsome trophies and prizes are donated each year by the important companies of the industry, and many individuals.

A WORD ABOUT SKY ADVERTISING

1. How many kinds of sky advertising are there?

   There are many kinds, including:

   sky writing
   sign towing—plane
   sign towing—blimp tandem sign towing illuminated night display
   sky broadcasting

2. Is sky advertising expensive?

   Sky advertising, based on number of visual impressions, can be one of the most inexpensive forms of advertising, if handled right, properly merchandised, etc.

3. Can "circulation" be determined in sky advertising?

   Yes, with a surprising degree of accuracy!

4. Do I have to go to different companies to get the different types of sky advertising?

   No. You can get any type of sky advertising you want from the S. S. Pike Company.

5. What are the advantages of dealing with S. S. Pike Company?

   One principal advantage, discounting the years of experience of S. S. Pike, is that every flight executed by them is covered in the amount of $50,000 Property Damage and $100,000/$500,000 Public Liability, with a separate certificate issued in the name of the advertiser.

6. Isn't sky advertising principally a "stunt"?

   If it is handled simply on the grounds of its being spectacular, yes—it is. But if you will allow us to weld it to your merchandising plans, no—it isn't a stunt. It's one of the most profitable investments you can make.

7. Where can I get sky advertising through the S. S. Pike Company?

   Services can be rendered in all sections of the United States and Canada, for coverage of cities, special events, seasonal advertising at beaches, etc.

8. Is there perhaps a particular kind of sky advertising most suited to my needs?

   Undoubtedly. This can best be determined by discussing your sales objectives with a representative of the S. S. Pike Company.

9. How can I learn more about sky advertising in general and the S. S. Pike Company in particular?

   Simply send for the FREE, spectacularly illustrated, 16-page booklet, "A WOMAN RAN SHRIEKING." Please make this request on your letterhead.

Vital, for you to know, are the thoughts, preferences and tastes of the masses. Important as modern research is to other big industries today, it is even more necessary right now to the motion picture industry. Over night, Ross Federal can put down a blanket survey for you in every state in the nation; within a week, you can know what your customers think of you and your work. Research, the modern tool of government and big business is as necessary to you as smash hits. Ask a Ross Federal representative how this vast organization can help you.

DOES IT BLEED?

To a motion picture man this expression has but one meaning.

In printers' parlance it means the placing of an illustration on the page so that it runs to the edge of the paper without leaving any margin.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

in TECHNICOLOR

FACTS ABOUT "THE WIZARD OF OZ"

Already in advanced production as we go to press, it is acclaimed by those who have been privileged to see it thus far as comparable to the showmanship surprise of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." "The Wizard of Oz," however, is performed by flesh and blood characters.

A brilliant array of screen stars has been gathered by Producer Mervyn Le Roy. Glittering pageantry, lilting musical numbers, spectacular settings and gorgeous costumes, beautiful girls and elaborate dancing specialties, are combined in a glorified extravaganza. Far greater than any stage presentation could ever be is "The Wizard of Oz," all-color picturization of L. Frank Baum's beloved book, read by millions the world over. The galaxy of talent and its elaborate features make it unquestionably the greatest musical spectacle the industry has ever seen.

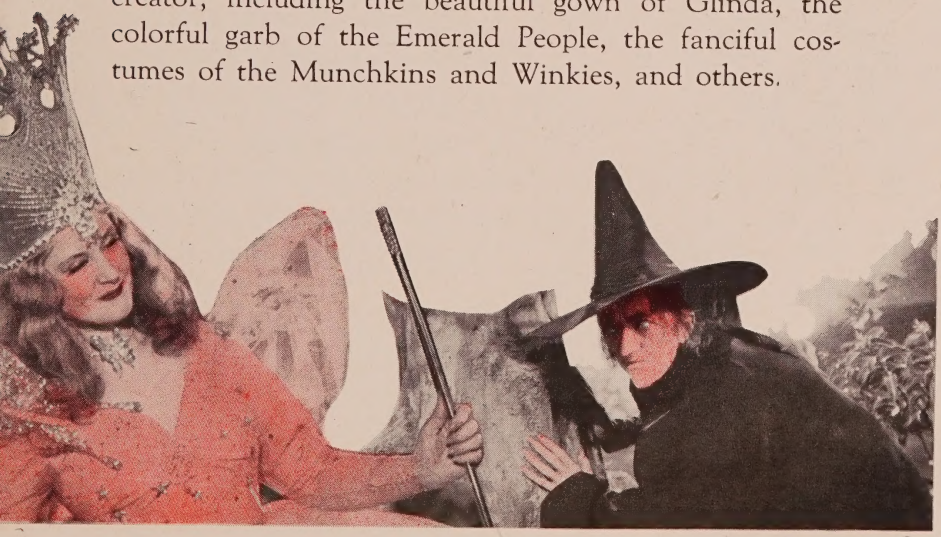
The characters shown, reading from top down, are FRANK MORGAN, as the Wizard; BERT LAHR, as the Cowardly Lion; JACK HALEY, as the Tin Woodman; JUDY GARLAND, as Dorothy; RAY BOLGER, as the Scarecrow; BILLIE BURKE, as the Good Witch; MARGARET HAMILTON, as the Wicked Witch.

SONGS, MUSIC, DANCES

Yip Harburg and Harold Arlen wrote the lilting musical score. They are famous for their many popular songs and for their work on New York shows. Among the songs in "The Wizard of Oz" are "The Jitterbug," with its colorful dancing number amid the strange "Jitter Trees," "If I Only Had a Brain," sung by Jack Haley and Judy Garland; "If I Were King of the Forest," sung by Lahr; "Over the Rainbow," sung by Miss Garland, "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," "The Merry Old Land of Oz," "Ding Dong," the Munchkin Chorus, and others, all with elaborate dancing interludes.

THE SETTINGS . . . COSTUMES

Taking advantage of Technicolor photography, gorgeous colors are used in all the beautiful Cedric Gibbons settings in the picture. The Emerald City, buildings of which are great emerald domes and spires; the Jitter Tree Forest, with its strange trees which move like human beings; the Palace of the Wicked Witch, with its Rainbow Bridge; the Land of the Munchkins with Giant Hollyhocks much larger than men; the Palace of the Wizard; the quaint streets of Oz—just a few of the elaborate settings. The costumes were designed by Adrian, famous fashion creator, including the beautiful gown of Glinda, the colorful garb of the Emerald People, the fanciful costumes of the Munchkins and Winkies, and others.



DRAMATIC HIGHLIGHTS

Dramatic highlights include Dorothy's running away to rescue her dog from the vengeful schoolteacher, her experiences with the strange old wagon-show owner, the cyclone, her rescue from the forest of Poppies by the lion, their capture by the Winged Monkeys, her encounters with the Wizard, appearing in many exciting forms, her rescue from the Witch, and her final victory over the Evil Sorceress. Her return to ordinary life after her delirium is given an unusual dramatic twist for the conclusion of the picture.

Oh, what delights await us all!

My Program for 1939:

Doctor's Dilemma
Major Barbara and
The Devil's Disciple

I PROMISE to my friend BERNARD SHAW, to my AMERICAN AND ENGLISH DISTRIBUTORS, and to ALL EXHIBITORS, that I will come up to the expectations they have in me as a Producer, and will try my best not to disappoint them after the kind reception "PYGMALION" had throughout the world.

When the history of
is recorded-

again it will

20th Century

writes the most in the ledger

be

-Fox that profitable pages

of your theatre!

That's Why

in the 1939 book of successful showmanship, Rule No. 1 again is: Make 20th Century-Fox product the backbone of your program!
